WEATHER
Warmer and windy conditions are forecast for today with the high in the mid 30s. Low will be 15 to 20. It will be cloudy with snow flurries tonight. Tomorrow will be cloudy and cold with a high of 25. Probability of snow is 30 per cent today, 60 per cent tonight, and 50 per cent tomorrow. Yesterday's recordings are: precipitation, .25 inches; river, 2.94 feet and falling; high 31, low 19. Sunrise will be at 7:07 a.m. and sunset will be at 6:02 p.m. Three inches of snow is reported on the ground.

WARREN COUNTY
It was digital day at Warren High, with representatives of Bell Telephone on hand to demonstrate the future in American education — computer. The computer checked students' answer and fired back a "correct" or "incorrect" response. The machine, located in another state, can call for a review of the entire lesson if too many wrong answers are given. Page One.

The rural areas of Warren County will be the center of attention in the local war on poverty. Meetings are scheduled to discuss community action programs, going over local problems and what can be done to solve them. Page A-2.

PENNSYLVANIA
In Harrisburg, Gov. Raymond Shafer called for a study of the General State Authority after a $5 million mistake in designing a science building at Pennsylvania State University. The mistake: ventilators were left out of the structure, which houses perishable equipment. Page One.

Gov. Shafer met with leaders of both parties to iron out differences between them on a reform of the state's ancient Constitution. No complete compromise was reached and the governor said "we are going to meet again." Page One.

Several witnesses in the House suggested that a state crime commission be made temporary, rather than permanent. The witnesses said a "temporary" body would have to justify its existence periodically and thus would be more effective in combatting crime. Page One.

NEW YORK STATE
Larry Saunders, a 21-year-old man living in New York City, was arrested in the triple murder of a Jamestown woman, her sister, and her nephew. The Jamestown woman was Mrs. Leah Laughlin, 44, of 16 Valley St. Page A-2.

Fire destroyed a large dairy barn near Sinclairville on the Leon Malloy farm. It was the second fire on the Malloy farm; in 1947, a blaze killed 26 head of cattle. Page A-2.

In Olean, citizens protested the cut of passenger service to New York State by the Pennsylvania Railroad. The tourist potential of Kinzua Dam was cited as a reason for continuing operation. Page One.

THE NATION
The federal government unveiled its new high-interest savings note, called the "Freedom Share." It bears 4.74 per cent interest per annum when held to its maturity—four and a half years. Bankers immediately began sniping at it because of its rate of return, which is higher than banks are allowed to give. Page One.

The Justice Department disclosed it has a file of more than 200,000 individuals and businesses believed to be tied up with the Cosa Nostra—the dreaded Mafia. The file has 3,115 "principals," the powerful families highlighted in testimony three years ago by Joe Valachi. Page One.

THE WORLD
Radio Peking called on China to rally behind Mao Tse-tung to meet the threat of massing Russian divisions on the Manchurian and Sinkiang Province borders. Seven Chinese divisions are face-to-face with four Soviet divisions. Page A9.

In the Vietnam war, B-52s twice hit suspected enemy positions along the coastal plains where the year's heaviest fighting has been going on. Little ground action was reported. Page A9.

SPORTS
Warren played visiting Bradford even for most of the game, but hit a cold streak in the fourth quarter to drop a 74-58 decision to the Owls in the final home contest of the season. Scott Hunter pumped in 20 points to lead the Dragons, but his performance was overshadowed by Tom Yachnich's 34 points and 23 rebounds. Page A6.

Sparta earned a playoff for the Upper Allegheny Valley League championship with a 113-68 romp over Eisenhower while East Forest was losing to West Forest, 80-73. The game to decide who wears the loop crown will be held tonight at Youngsville. In other county games, Youngsville tripped Tidioute, 65-45 and Sheffield routed Ridgway, 91-52. Page A6.

The Amateur Athletic Union lifted suspension on foreign track and field stars attending colleges in this country. Reversing an earlier ruling made when the athletes competed in an unsanctioned meet, the AAU stated they could now enter approved meets. Page A7.

Professional football officials revealed yesterday that NFL teams will meet AFL representatives in 14 or 15 games during the 1967 exhibition season. The date and participants for the annual doubleheader in Cleveland was also announced. Page A8.

STUDENTS MOB VICE PRESIDENT
A Secret Service man (center) waves to police to clear the way for Vice President Hubert Humphrey's limousine after he was mobbed by students Monday after he made a speech at Stanford University, California. The students picketed the hall where Humphrey appeared protesting the Vietnam war.

KINZUA DAM POTENTIAL CITED

Olean Officials Protest Halting of PRR Service

OLEAN, N.Y. (AP) — A lawyer claimed yesterday the Pennsylvania Railroad's move to discontinue two passenger trains service this Southwestern New York area came on the eve of an anticipated recreational and industrial boom to Cattaraugus County.

The county's "enlarging economic picture instead presents a need for additional public transportation," Frank W. Bowen, the county attorney, told an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing.

The railroad seeks to drop Trains 570 and 571, which provide daylight passenger service between Baltimore and Buffalo with stops in Olean.

PRR officials contended Feb. 14 in Harrisburg, Pa., the railroad was losing $375,000 a year by operating the trains on the 395-mile run. They said there had been a 75 per cent decline in passengers over the last ten years.

Bowen argued that the trains actually stood to gain passenger revenue.

"Large areas in Cattaraugus County heretofore devoted to dairy farming and agricultural pursuits have now given way to resort, ski runs, parks, recreational facilities and a multitude of new and significant industries," he said.

He said the Kinzua Dam and Allegheny Reservoir area was "destined to become one of the sightseeing attractions in the northeast." In addition, he said the nearby Western New York Nuclear Center was "sure to attract new industries with the need for passenger service."

Bowen said that, in view of the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad's recent action in discontinuing its daily Phoebe Snow passenger trains, the present action, if upheld, would "deal a body blow to the future of public transportation in and out of Cattaraugus County."

Train 570 and 571 also serve intermediate points such as York, Sunbury, Williamsport, Lock Haven and Emporium, Pa. The ICC will wind up the hearing tomorrow in Buffalo. It has until May 15 to complete its investigation.

AT HIGHER INTEREST

Government Issues New Freedom Bond

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government unveiled yesterday a new high interest savings note — the "Freedom Share," bearing 4.74 interest yearly when held to its 4½-year maturity — and tied its existence directly to the Vietnam war.

President Johnson, in launching the 1967 savings bond drive, called the new security "creative, attractive, and a cheerful companion" to the familiar series-E savings bond.

The new notes will go on sale May 1 and can be purchased on a one-for-one basis only in combination with series-E savings bonds through the payroll savings plan.

Announcement of the new security came at a bond luncheon here which was carried by closed-circuit television to similar luncheons in 32 other cities. Johnson taped his talk in advance for use on the telecast.

CITES EXECUTIVE RESPONSIBILITY

Kennedy Enters CIA Controversy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., said yesterday the Central Intelligence Agency operated under presidential orders when it financed student trips to foreign meetings.

"If it was a mistake, it was one of policy made in the executive branch and it should not be blamed on the CIA," Kennedy told a reporter.

Mistakes by GSA Prompts Shafer To Call for Probe

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer ordered a review yesterday of General State Authority contract provisions in an attempt to fix responsibility for construction or design deficiencies.

The move was prompted by a half-million dollar mistake in constructing a science building at the University of Pennsylvania.

"We're going to have to start pinpointing responsibility so we know who's at fault," Shafer said in ordering Property and Supplies Secretary Perrin Hamilton to conduct the review.

The governor's order came after a request for an additional $495,250 was presented to the GSA executive board for ventilating and air conditioning of a new science building at the University of Pennsylvania.

The building is primarily a research-laboratory unit which cannot function without proper ventilation system, the board was told.

Only 5 per cent of the building is presently occupied. The structure was one of four buildings in a new science complex built at Penn last year for $4.8 million.

The board approved the request for the ventilating funds, but Shafer asked: "Why wasn't this done originally? Who was responsible?"

Replied John Gruener, director of construction for the GSA: "In the design and planning stage back in 1960-61, this aspect simply was not completely thought of at the time."

Shafer countered: "Well, we're going to have to have our contracts reflect responsibility for this type thing."

In other action, the executive board ordered a revised schedule of architects fees rescinded pending a cost study by the GSA executive staff.

Robert L. Kunzig, the new executive director of the GSA, told the monthly board meeting that the new schedule, approved last Oct. 18, would cost the GSA "considerable money ... in the millions."

While Kunzig lacked specific figures, he told the board that the revised schedule had generally resulted in higher fees across the board for approved GSA architects.

Kunzig recalled that the previous GSA board had approved the fee change on the advice that it would make calculating payments easier without increasing costs.

Kunzig said that, in fact, however, the change "did increase all architects' and engineers' fees with very few exceptions."

His suggestions that the new schedule be rescinded pending the staff study was promptly endorsed by House Speaker Kenneth B. Lee, who said of the Oct. 18 action: "We were sold a bill of goods on that one."

Architects receive between $10 million and $15 million annually for designing GSA projects.

FUTURE OF EDUCATION?

Computer Tells Warrenites How

By DAN SMREKAR
Students yesterday at Warren Area High School got an insight into the educational system of the future when a computerized system of learning was presented by representatives of Bell Telephone Co.

Daniel R. Smith Jr. and Bill Carney, company representatives, set up a working system in the school in which students answered questions by using a teletype machine with a keyboard similar to a typewriter.

The answers were sent to an out-of-state computer and then instantaneously were sent back to the school, where the student learned whether his answers were correct.

If correct, the teletype said, continue with the lesson. If answers were wrong the machine said to review or give more detail.

A company spokesman said that if a lot of answers were wrong, the out-of-state computer would give up and send a message to go back and read the lesson.

The purpose of the education program of the future is to update the role of the teacher and to provide the student with a chance to progress at his own individual speed, given different intensities of instruction.

In the future the teachers might become "diagnosticians rather than drillmasters," Smith said.

The teacher would be able to spend time analyzing computer progress reports and participating in student analysis. A company spokesman said the teacher would be upgraded in that he would be able to handle more students and could concentrate more on individual problems.

He said the new teaching system would do away with much repetition and doubt in student progress.

The system had first been displayed last week at the high school for teachers during a teachers' professional session conference.

Previously only Thomas Barratt, school district superintendent, and a small number of townspeople had seen the display, the company spokesman said.

Presently the system is too expensive for widespread use, but it could be put into effect in the future if costs could be reduced to an economical level. Bell Telephone is continuing its efforts to reduce the cost.

ON RULES REFORM

Governor Meets With Assembly

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer met with legislative leaders of both parties yesterday in an avowed effort to reach a compromise agreement on his beleaguered constitutional convention bill.

The meeting was similar to one held two weeks ago when Democrats made known to the governor their objections to the bill. Although the Republicans made some concessions, the measure was passed by the Senate with solid Democratic opposition.

"We met again with leaders of the Democratic Party and discussed further the problem of constitutional revision," Shafer told newsmen following the 75-minute closed-door meeting. "We discussed certain specific matters, and we are going to meet again."

Shafer repeatedly dodged questions concerning possible areas of compromise. In response to a query, he said no time had been set for another meeting.

However, minutes later House Minority Leader Herbert Fineman, D-Philadelphia, said the governor had agreed to meet with lawmakers at 9:30 a.m. Monday in his office.

Fineman laid out three concessions which he said the Republicans would have to make before Democrats would lend their support to the bill. They were:

— Elimination of a provision requiring that delegates write into the constitution a specific ban against a graduated income tax.

— Partisan election of delegates with a guarantee of minority representation. Shafer has proposed nonpartisan election of delegates, which Fineman said is impossible.

— Authorization for the convention to extend its deliberations to the amendments appearing on the May 16 primary ballot in case any or all of them should fail.

OBITUARIES

Clifford Fink

Clifford Fink, 58, of RD 1, Venus, a native of Barnes, died at 6 a.m. yesterday, Feb. 21, 1967, at Oil City Hospital. He was born on June 1, 1909, the son of the late George and Catherine Barber Fink. He lived in Venus for the past 12 years and was employed there as a leaseman for President Oil Company.

Surviving are his wife, whom he married on Oct. 26, 1940, in Warren, two brothers, Earl of Tiona and Walter of Ridgway, and two sisters, Mrs. Ann Mullen and Mrs. Frank (Hazel) Bonavita, both of Warren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Feb. 24, at Borden Funeral Home, Sheffield. The Rev. Jack Boyd of Sheffield First Methodist Church will officiate. Burial will be in Barnes Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home starting at 7 p.m. today.

Mrs. Anna Fosburg

Mrs. Anna Fosburg, 83, a former resident of Warren for many years, died at 2:45 a.m. yesterday, Feb. 21, 1967, at Rouse Home, Youngsville.

She was born in Ronne, Bornholm, Denmark, on April 20, 1883, and was a member of First Lutheran Church of Warren.

Surviving are a sister Mrs. Clyde Simonsen of Warren; a son Robert Fosburg of Plymouth, N.H.; a brother Theodore Basin of Vestal, N.Y.; two grandchildren, R. Michael Fosburg of New York City and Dr. Richard Fosburg of Seaford, N.Y.; and several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her husband, Fred Fosburg in 1951, and a son Richard in 1933.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. today at Templeton Funeral Home. The Rev. Frederick B. Haer of the First Lutheran Church will officiate. Burial will be in Oakland Cemetery.

Mrs. Delphia Foster Lord

Mrs. Delphia F. Lord, 100, of Independence, Kans., who maintained a summer home near Bear Lake for many years, died at 6 p.m. Friday, Feb. 17, 1967, at her home in Kansas.

A fractured hip kept Mrs. Lord from coming to Bear Lake the past summer. She had spent the 20 previous summers there. She was born on July 25, 1866, near Bradford, and spent part of her early years in the Jamestown, N.Y., area.

Her father was a cousin of Stephen Foster, the famous composer.

Surviving are her son of Independence, and several nieces and nephews in the Jamestown area.

Funeral services were held yesterday in Independence.

CIA Flap

great deal of information," he said, by piecing together data offered by world travelers.

"So far as the talk that there has been anything done that impinges on academic freedom or subverts youth," he said, "that's just a lot of hogwash."

Russell contended the program of helping young Americans attend world youth meetings thwarted Communist efforts to take over those forums.

"I think it was a good program," Russell said. "It probably paid a higher dividend to stop Communist propaganda than almost any other program."

However, Russell told newsmen that because of the uproar over revelations that the CIA had been subsidizing the student association "it might be well for the CIA to sever financial connections with a great number of organizations."

It was not clear from his remarks whether the roundabout funding would be withdrawn only from organizations that have been publicly disclosed as recipients of CIA funds, or from other groups as well that may still be unknown.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said the CIA should not be subsidizing private groups, student or otherwise, but he predicted the agency will survive its current "period of discomfiture."

Mansfield said the government could allocate funds openly through the State Department and other agencies, "and state it to the world," so that Americans could attend international meetings.

Former Socialist party leader Norman Thomas confirmed in New York a Washington Post story that the defunct Institute for Labor Research had received more than $1 million in CIA funds.

Thomas, who headed the institute, said he did not know the real source of the money and thought it came from the J. M. Kaplan Fund of New York.

He said some of the money was used to denounce U.S. government policy in the Dominican Republic.

"I do regret knowing we were duped by the CIA, but I don't regret what we did with their money," Thomas said.

Jamestown Extends Trash Plan

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — City Council last night voted unanimously to extend the garbage collection contract with Curro Construction Company beyond its April 30, deadline for two additional months.

A new contract for which bids will be opened on March 16, for the collection of city refuse is expected to succeed the Curro agreement.

The extension of the present contract was provided for in the original agreement and will cost the city an additional $32,444.

In bidding for the new garbage collection works, one of the specifications requires bidders to supply their own disposal site.

The Chautauqua County Health Department has condemned the present Fluvanna dump site being used by the city and ordered the local officials to cease using the site no later than August of this year.

With one councilman absent the legislators voted to accept the forced paving program which was presented by Joseph Beale, the director of the Department of Public Works. The vote was eight to three.

Councilman Robert Godfrey and Joseph Spitalo voted against the list saying that Falconer st. should be given consideration for paving.

Other resolutions passed by the councilmen last night were mostly of the routine nature.

Arrest Woman For Bad Check

A 26-year-old Warren woman was arrested Monday on a worthless check charge.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Richard E. Hegerty, who investigated, stated that Katherine Shaw, of 3½ Malvina st., on January 7, passed a check at Jamesway, Inc. in North Warren, which was returned marked insufficient funds.

According to Hegerty, the accused was sent the usual 10-day notice but failed to make the check good. The worthless check charge was filed before Peace Justice Raymond P. Gilmore on Feb. 17 and a warrant issued.

The woman was taken before the justice Monday, made restitution in the amount of $25, paid costs and was released.

Community Action Plans Moving Into Rural Area

Residents of several rural areas in Warren County will have a chance next month to discuss "community action" programs.

Richard Brown, director of local war on poverty headquarters, said yesterday meetings are slated next month in Youngsville, Sugar Grove, Clarendon, Tidoute and Russell. The meetings, open to the public and civic groups, will concern local problems and possible solutions.

All community action meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m. They will be held at the following places:

March 1, Youngsville Elementary School Auditorium; March 2, Sugar Grove Elementary School; March 8, Lincoln School in Clarendon; March 9, Tidoute Area School cafeteria; March 15, Russell Elementary School.

Man Held In Three Murders

BROOKLYN, N.Y. — Police in Brooklyn yesterday arrested and reportedly charged Larry Saunders, 21, with the triple murder which claimed the life of a Jamestown, N.Y., woman and her sister and nephew late Monday afternoon.

When approached by police who wanted to question him, Saunders shot himself twice and was taken immediately to Kings Hospital in Brooklyn where he was reported in serious condition last night from self-inflicted gunshot wounds.

Saunders is the son of one of the murder victims, Mrs. Bernice Hunter, 41, by a previous marriage. He is being charged with the murder of his mother, his five-year-old half-brother, Luther Hunter Jr., and his aunt Mrs. Leah Laughlin, 44, of 16 Valley st., Jamestown, who was visiting the Brooklyn residence of her sister.

Saunders reportedly was disturbed over his own marital problems. Police believe he has been a narcotic addict.

The triple shooting was discovered by Luther Hunter when he returned home from work Friday evening. Mrs. Laughlin had been expected to return to Jamestown yesterday after spending a long weekend with her sister.

Jamestown News Briefs

A Warren man, Dennis R. Valone of 214 Lincoln st., forfeited $25 bail to a Falconer, N.Y., justice of the peace Monday. He failed to answer a charge of being an unlicensed operator.

The Jamestown post office will operate on holiday hours today. There will be no city or rural deliveries except for special delivery mail. Mail will be collected throughout the city after 5 p.m.

Victor Whitney, 24, of Falconer, pleaded guilty in Olean Monday to charges of resisting arrest and disorderly conduct. City Judge James Crowley gave him three months in jail for resisting arrest and a suspended $50 fine for disorderly conduct.

Paul Harvey, columnist and commentator, spoke at the annual Dunkirk Chamber of Commerce dinner Monday. He said he approved of the CIA's secret subsidy of student organizations.

Fire Destroys Dairy Barn At Sinclairville

SINCLAIRVILLE, N. Y. — Fire yesterday destroyed a 40 by 126 foot barn on the Leon Malloy dairy farm on the Sinclairville-Red Bird Corners rd.

The fire which was discovered about 9:30 a.m. yesterday has been tentatively blamed on defective wiring by fire officials searching the smoldering ruins.

Firefighters from three volunteer departments battled the blaze all day yesterday and remained on the scene overnight, pumping water on minor flames which occurred intermittently in smoldering hay.

Briefly Speaking

A representative of Pittsburgh public schools said recently that Pittsburgh expects to have 500 teacher vacancies in September, 1967. The pay scale there runs from $5,900 to $9,200 in 12 increments for teachers with bachelors' degrees.

Kathy Wachter of Chandler's Valley, a student at Eisenhower High School, was admitted for X-rays to Warren General Hospital yesterday after she was involved in a tumbling accident at the school. Injuries were minor, a hospital spokesman said.

The emergency truck of Warren Fire Department yesterday went to a Biddle st. address at 12:47 p.m., where firemen warned a Warren resident about starting a fire too close to buildings.

The Vehicle Code of Pennsylvania states that a three-point violation is awarded to motorists who exceed a 20 mph speed limit within 200 feet of all railway grade crossings.

In a two-car accident near the Fifth st. bridge yesterday evening David Baumann of 208½ Liberty st., was charged with reckless driving after his car struck a parked car owned by Paul Drescher of 215 Buchanan st.

Borough patrolman Edward Peterson estimated damage at $1,000 to the Baumann vehicle and $500 to the Drescher car.

HAD NO KNOWLEDGE

Churches Received Aid from CIA

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Council of Churches announced yesterday its programs have received minor financial aid in three instances from foundations linked to the Central Intelligence Agency.

The council is the cooperating agency for 34 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations that have a total membership of 42 million persons.

Dr. R. H. Edwin Espy of New York, National Council of Churches general secretary, said the gifts from these sources came to light after a thorough check into account books of gifts and contributions the council received from foundations.

"The national council had no knowledge at any time that any of these gifts may have had any link with CIA involvement," he said.

Another council spokesman said: "The gifts were so small it would seem that if there were any kind of CIA link it would not amount to any commitment in any sense."

Asked if the council would accept any additional funds from CIA-linked foundations, the spokesman added: "We certainly would hesitate, to say the least, in accepting."

Dr. Espy said the check of contributions received showed that in 1966 and this year the council received approximately $2,000 from the J. M. Kaplan Fund of New York to assist the council in its Poverty Rights program.

He said the survey revealed the Foundation for Youth and

PROBES JFK DEATH

District Attorney Jim Garrison, a fiery Louisianan, is behind a probe into the assassination of President Kennedy, which the attorney says will bring convictions of a conspiracy plot. He said the plot, which involved Lee Harvey Oswald and others, was hatched in New Orleans.

Declines to Run

CORRY — Dorr Clark, street director here for the past several years, has announced that he will not be a candidate for reelection to City Council. Clark stated that he would retire soon from long service with Pennsylvania Electric Co. and his plans called for considerable travel which would take him away from town and make it impossible to continue in council.

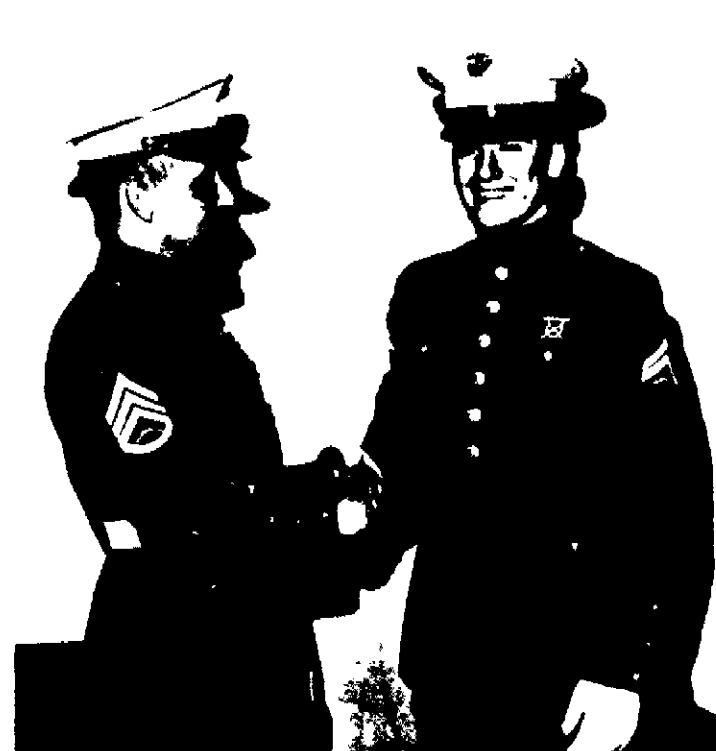

Mine Kills Vietnam Historian

By R. W. APPLE JR.
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
SAIGON — Bernard Fall, one of the ranking authorities on Vietnam, was killed yesterday by a Vietcong mine while on patrol with United States Marines.

Dr. Fall, a 40-year-old professor of international relations at Howard University in Washington, D.C., had written seven books about Vietnam. The most recent, "Hell in a Very Small Place: The Siege of Dien Bienphu," was acclaimed by reviewers when it was published by Lippincott early this year.

He had often written of the subtle ironies of the battle for Indochina; his death conformed to the pattern he discerned.

He was killed about 14 miles northwest of Hue, along a desolate stretch of the seacoast known as "The Street Without Joy." He had chosen that phrase as the title of one of his major books, and had dedicated it to "Those who died there."

ON EMBASSY DUTY

FORMERLY OF RUSSELL

Cpl. Ongley to Get Embassy Duty

Marine Cpl. Jerry F. Ongley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Ongley, RD 2, Corry, formerly of Russell, has received orders to report to Arlington, Va., for six to eight weeks prior to assignment to embassy duty.

There are 95 embassies, consulates and legations throughout the world at which Marines serve. Their job is to enforce security regulations, provide protection for classified material and to safeguard the property of the United States Government.

Marines took over their assignments at State Dept. installations in foreign countries shortly after World War II. Until that time the department had been hiring Americans and foreign civilians to protect its foreign service posts.

With the advent of the Iron Curtain, the need for a young, alert, trained and well-disciplined guard force became evident. The Foreign Services Act of 1946 stipulated that a request for such a force should be made from the Secretary of the Navy. Since the Corps previously had served the state department on special assignments, it was called upon to provide an interior guard force.

Before a Marine can apply for state department duty he must fulfill many strict requirements and be almost a perfect physical specimen.

Marine Cpl. Ongley, a 1965 graduate of Eisenhower High School and a former athletic star, enlisted in the USMC on Sept. 23, 1965 and was assigned to Force Troops at Camp Lejeune, N.C., prior to being selected for embassy duty. He was promoted to Corporal just before his leave.

IN REXBURG, IDAHO

Romney Visits Boyhood Home

By WARREN WEAVER JR.
(c) N.Y. Times News Service
REXBURG, Idaho — Mrs. Rose Martinson, her white hair in pin curls, clutched a red wrapper a little tighter about her and stared in mute surprise at the square-jawed, gray-haired man in the doorway of her house.

"Well, I'm certainly sorry you caught me like this," she finally blurted out to Gov. George Romney of Michigan. Then she fled into the kitchen of the white stucco bungalow in which the Michigan governor had spent five memorable years of his boyhood.

Unabashed, Romney went in, followed by a troupe of reporters and cameramen, and began explaining to his wife that the picture windows were new and the living room used to be bigger before they put part off it in the garage.

It was literally a homecoming for the Republican politician, who broke his five-state speaking tour for a sentimental journey to this village of 6,000 persons nestled in the upper snake valley between the Sawtooth and Teton Mountains.

The flags were flying on Main street in front of Johnson's Drugs, and 1,000 school children, dressed in their best, were queuing outside Washington School. It was there that Romney graduated from 8th grade as valedictorian of the class of 1921.

About two dozen members of that class were gathered later in the student union at Ricks College on the edge of town to greet their famous former colleague.

Before about 2,000 students in the Ricks College auditorium, Romney recalled that he had earned his first dollar in Rexburg—thinning sugar beets for $7 an acre in the dry flatlands around the village—and also had his first date here.

"I won my first Boy Scout merit badge in Rexburg," the governor continued, "and had my first political discussion, arguing over American participation in the League of Nations with Alice Schwindeman and Jasmine Romney."

Berlin Students Call for Probe Of CIA Actions

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
BERLIN — Student leaders at West Berlin's Free University called yesterday for an immediate investigation into charges that the Central Intelligence Agency had recruited American and other students here for intelligence work.

The disclosure of such activities from 1959 to 1962 by a former American student in the New York Times appeared to come as no great surprise to students and university officials.

"We have suspected something like that all the time," Walter Kreipe, a spokesman for the "Allgemeiner Studentenausschuss," the students self-governing body, declared. "However, we have had no direct evidence of such activities."

Kreipe said the student body had called on Heinrich Albertz, mayor of Berlin, to take immediate action to halt C.I.A. activities at the free university.

Reservoir Site

Some 100 properties to be acquired for the Woodcock Creek reservoir project in Crawford County are now undergoing title search by the Army Corps of Engineers' Pittsburgh district office. Work on the program started this week. A. C. Martucci of the district's real estate office said bids will be examined before a contract is awarded.

Tiny Town Yes, A Basement Full of Values You Can't Afford to Miss.

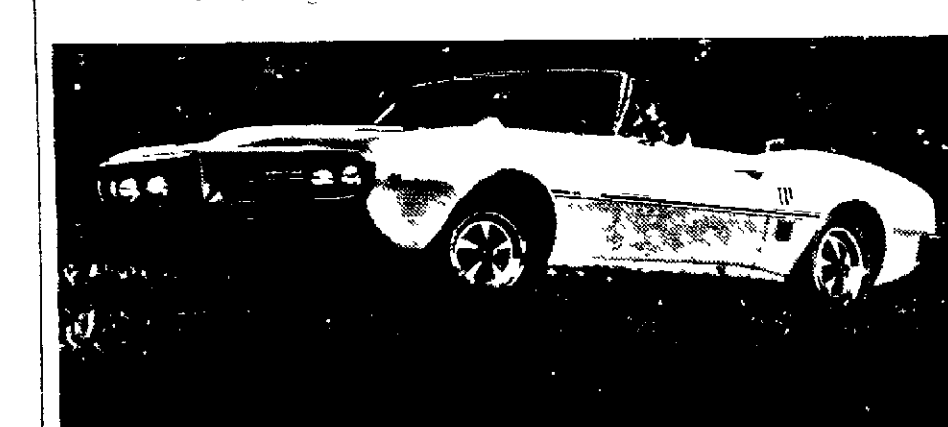

If you thought Pontiac was coming out with just another sports car, you don't know Pontiac!

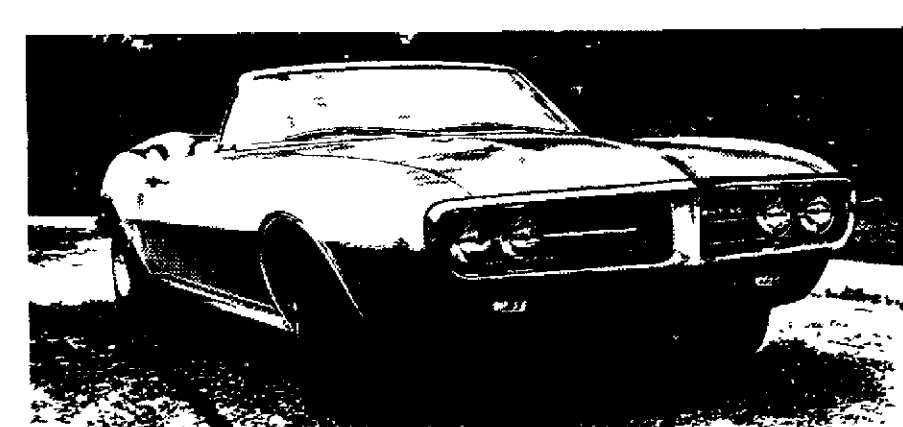

Pontiac announces not one, two, three or four, but five magnificent new Firebirds for every kind of driving.

Five new Firebirds from five new Firebirds with the same advanced Pontiac styling and the same different driving personalities. And they all come with the same interior hood grain styled dash, exclusive sports bucket seats, wide oval tires and GM's standard power package.

Firebird 400. Coiled under those dual scoops is a 400 cubic inch V-8 that shrugs off 325 hp. It's connected to a floor-mounted heavy-duty three-speed. On special suspension with redline wide-oval tires. You can order it with a close- or wide-ratio four-speed. Or with our stupendous three-speed Turbo Hydra-Matic. After this, there isn't any more.

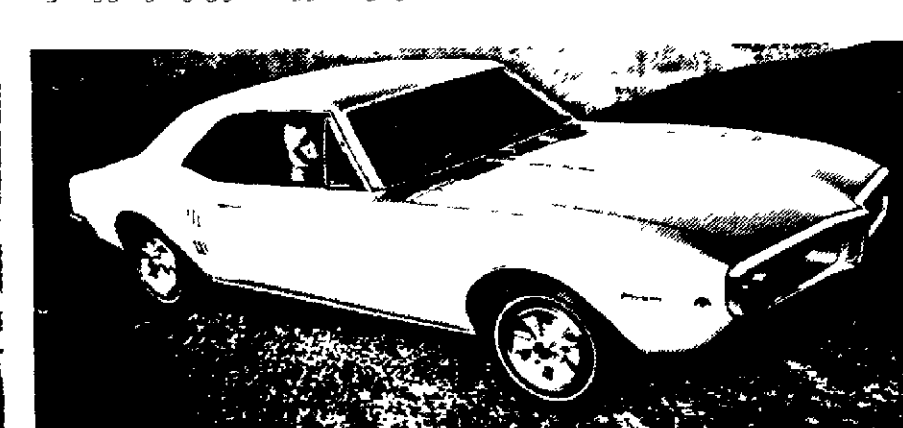

Firebird HO. HO stands for High Output. It's also a second performance level. The Firebird HO comes with a 325 cubic inch V-8, a four-speed or a three-speed Turbo Hydra-Matic, and a standard power package.

Firebird 326. Is there room for a family in a sports car? There is now. The Firebird 326 combines the excitement of a sports car with the practicality of a 326 cubic inch V-8 that delivers 250 hp on regular gas. Yes, the 326 has a standard transmission is an all-synchro three speed, but you can order an automatic.

Firebird Sprint. Now you don't have to go to Europe for a sophisticated road machine. Firebird Sprint's standard motor is a 216 cubic inch V-6, a four-speed or a three-speed Turbo Hydra-Matic, and a standard power package.

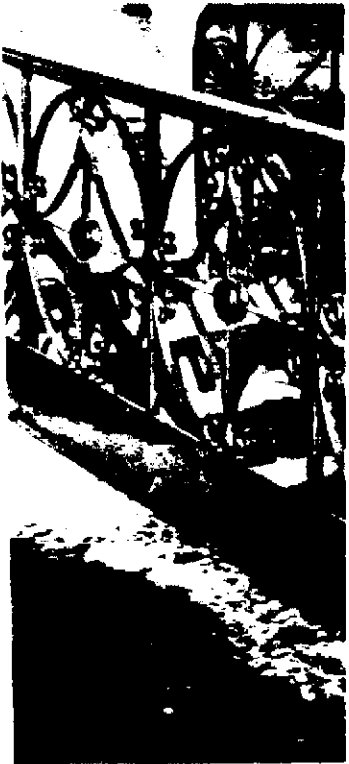

Firebird. This is our economy Firebird—with the same exciting options and interiors as the more exotic ones. Its 216 cubic inch V-6 delivers 165 hp from regular unleaded gas. See and drive all five Firebirds at your authorized Pontiac dealer's.

Dairymen Sell Cows In Protest

GREENVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Farmers from eight Ohio and Pennsylvania counties sold more than 200 dairy cows for slaughter yesterday in an effort to force up milk prices.

"If this doesn't do it," said a spokesman, "we've got a lot more cows we can sell."

The farmers, who receive about 12 cents per quart from processors, said the sale of the animals would remove some 1.2 million quarts of milk from the market annually.

The cattle were sold by members of the National Farmers Organization from Erie, Crawford, Lawrence and Mercer counties, Pa., and Trumbull, Ashtabula, Portage and Geauga counties, Ohio.

"We are distressed by the fact that our costs are getting so high," said Mrs. Rayburn Campbell, wife of a New Wilmington, Pa., dairy farmer. "We're determined to do something to raise our incomes."

The cows sold for an average $200, about $150 per head less than they would have brought if sold for dairy purposes.

"Sure it means a loss right now," said Mrs. Campbell, "but we're hoping it will result in a real gain in income in the long run."

Mrs. Campbell said similar sales are being conducted this week in many of the 25 states in which the farmers' organization is active.

Roosevelt Returns To Florida

ABOARD CARRIER FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT (AP) — The captain of the aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt, steaming toward her home base at Mayport, Fla., refused yesterday to discuss the incident at Cape Town, South Africa, where 3,800 crewmen were denied shore leave.

"I can't comment on Cape Town," said Capt. Martin C. O'Neill, "and please don't badger my people about it."

Because of South Africa's strict racial segregation, the Department of Defense canceled all shore leaves Feb. 4-6, while the Roosevelt was taking on provisions and fuel at Cape Town, after eight months of action off the coast of Vietnam.

O'Neill said the denial of shore leave which angered many South Africans caused "very little morale problem" on the carrier.

Newsmen flew out to meet the carrier.

The Roosevelt was scheduled to remain at Mayport several months for overhaul. All crewmen will be given extended leaves.

Portugal Joins NATO With New Command

(c) N.Y. Times News Service LISBON — Portugal will assume a new strategic importance in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization with the establishment here of the Iberian Atlantic Command.

The new command — to be known as Iberiant — will be inaugurated today, at a ceremony attended by Admiral Thomas H. Moorer, U.S. Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic, and General Lyman Lemnitzer, U.S. Supreme Allied Commander in Europe.

The decision to establish a maritime headquarters of NATO in Portugal was taken last fall, after the French withdrew from the military organization.

Iberiant's main mission will be to protect the heavily traveled shipping lanes to the Mediterranean, according to military sources here.

Unafraid Soldier Wins Freedom Foundation Honor

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — Freedom Foundation awarded its highest honor yesterday to a 21-year-old North Carolina soldier killed in South Vietnam.

The George Washington Award, which includes a check for $5,000, was given posthumously to Pfc. Hiram D. Strickland of Graham, N.C. It is to be accepted by his parents at special ceremonies Wednesday on the 235th birthday anniversary of America's first president.

Strickland, killed in action Feb. 1, 1966, was cited for a letter he wrote to his parents and three sisters in which he acknowledged that he might be heading for death in battle and said, "Don't mourn me, mother, for I'm happy I died fighting my country's enemies."

Out of Control!

By ANDREW C. SORELLE, JR.
Petroleum Engineer of Houston, Texas

After the invasion of France in 1944 our outfit, the 48th Fighter Group, 9th Air Force, was one of the first to be moved to Normandy.

A steel matted flying strip was laid out for us through apple orchards and hedgerows. We were flying several missions each day in support of our front line troops.

About noon one day in early July, Operations received orders to send four Thunderbolts to attack a column of German trucks. It was a typical mission except for one thing: the weather was very bad. The enemy was taking advantage of the weather to retreat, hoping that we would not dare to fly in the prevailing weather conditions.

The four of us took off and stayed low, just beneath the cloud ceiling. Just as we came over the top of a hill, there were trucks and equipment, bumper to bumper on the highway below.

We did not have the advantage of surprise, because after we spotted the convoy we had to circle and return and by that time the enemy was ready for us.

I felt a heavy jolt to my plane and immediately it went out of control. A German 88-mm. shell had ripped a three-foot hole through the left wing.

By a miracle the shell, fused to go off on contact, did not explode. But it did cut the aileron cable. The aileron itself, that all-important tab on the trailing edge of the wing, fell from the plane.

I knew in that instant that I had lost my aircraft: 90 per cent of my flying control came from the two ailerons; one was gone entirely, and the other was flopping in the wind.

I knew, too, exactly what my plane would do. It would nose down and barrel-roll to the left.

I was only 200 feet from the ground when the roll started. I knew I was going to die.

What happened next, I am told, could not have happened. Just a few feet from the ground that battle-torn old Thunderbolt snap-rolled. There were no controls on the aircraft with which such a maneuver could be accomplished, and yet it happened.

Instead of barrel-rolling, nose down, to the left, I was making a steep climbing turn to the right, just what I needed to do to return to the airstrip.

My plane continued to do the impossible: it flew into the low overcast and leveled out.

I could not see the ground. I didn't care! Somehow I had been given a few extra seconds of time and I wanted to get out of that uncontrollable machine as fast as I could.

I threw open the canopy and tried to avoid the wildly gyrating stick as I got loose from all of my harness. I stood up in my seat and tried to go out over the left side of the plane.

But again forces beyond my control took command. It was as if I were being physically held back.

I looked down into the cockpit—what a mess! My instruments gone, the stick making wild circular movements, and yet my Thunderbolt was flying just as I would have flown it if I had been able. I sat down and buckled up again.

Suddenly I broke out of the overcast and I knew where I was. I was approaching my landing strip. I could see the runway just to the right of my plane's nose.

The only control I had left was the tail rudder, which moved the plane right or left. I quickly gave right rudder, which made me do a flat skid that aligned me with the runway.

I put the wheels in the down position, and hoped they had dropped: with no instrument panel I could not tell.

With no ailerons the only way I could control the altitude of the aircraft was to cut the throttle; that would make me fall. I chopped the throttle hard, and the plane fell away beneath me.

I hit perfectly, right at the beginning of the matted runway. I was going close to 170 miles per hour. The little Thunderbolt bounced violently and dove toward the runway a second time. Again it bounced and almost nosed over.

With each new, violent bounce the end of the matting came closer. The very day before I would have plowed into the hedgerows at the end of the runway, but that night the engineers had come in and bulldozed about 200 more yards of runway.

My plane hit the new mud and started skidding around and around and finally stopped.

After I turned off the ignition switch, I sat quietly in a supernatural hush. In that silence God became real to me. Audibly, or in my spirit, I heard five clear words. "I have saved your life."

I knew I was in the indescribable presence of God. Of course, He was there! He had piloted my plane safely home.

The sirens were screaming across the field. I sat, and listened, and as they raced toward me I knew my friends were going to find a different man in the cockpit of that Thunderbolt from the pilot who had climbed aboard an hour earlier. How could it be otherwise: I no longer belonged to myself at all.

Excelsior!

You have to take them one at a time, but it's difficult not to look ahead to the competition in the Regional mat tourney at Altoona and the States.

District VI and IX tournaments will be held at Altoona's Jaffa Mosque and Brookville respectively this weekend and there will be a lot of familiar names in the running for berths in the Central Northwestern Regional on March 4.

For the tree Dragon grapplers wrestling at Meadville this Saturday, the competition will be tough, but it gets better with each step up the ladder.

The 88-pound class is toughest to rate because the little guys don't see as much action during the season as the matmen in the other 12 weights and comparisons are nearly impossible. Warren's Gail Sudul can be given an even chance on the strength of a 6-0 record to win the title at Meadville. There, however, the trail ends for the Dragon freshman.

Frank Cataldo will meet Saegertown's Bob Braymer and/or Frank Lane of Reynolds, depending on the afternoon pairings, at 95. Both are known to be good wrestlers. Braymer, 6-2 in last year's 88-pound match and Dana Sorensen whipped Braymer, 10-5 in the finals for the championship.

Sorensen runs into Dick Braymer, 95-pound State Champ for Saegertown last season. Defending State Champions are not unbeatable, and the way the Warren sophomore handled Pat Scurry last Saturday night, he could pull it off.

Besides Sorensen and Braymer, only Jim Gollner of Reynolds returns to defend a District X title. The latter, you will remember, defeated Dave Sorensen by referee's decision in '66.

Three others who won District crowns as underclassmen won't be back this year. Commodore Perry's Art Grinnell went all the way to a State Championship at 103, but had a weight problem this season and couldn't even make a starting berth on his own team, Ron Johnson of Meadville sustained that broken arm and Franklin's Wayne Graham lost by disqualification to Rick Gray Saturday.

If Cataldo advances to the Regional tourney, Clearfield's Dan Clark will probably be his biggest hurdle to the State finals. The Bison grappler handed "Chici" his only loss in the first match of the season.

Sorensen's competition at Altoona would be Ken Hess of West Snyder and, probably, Larry Strong of United Joint. The former was a State finalist as a freshman last year and the latter lost to Grinnell in the Regional.

Later this week we will predict the winners in the District tourney, but the situation doesn't look good for this area at Altoona. To list just a few familiar names that will be competing for berths in States, defending champs will include Larry Rippey of Lock Haven (127), Barry Daniels of Bald Eagle Nittany (133), Clearfield's Tom Young (145) and Dave Joyner of State College (heavyweights).

Then throw in a few District winners back for another shot, like State College's Dave Weber (112), Sam Reish of Penns Valley (145) and Bellefonte's Jim Torsell (165) and you can see that the competition will be pretty stiff.

And we haven't even mentioned about a dozen wrestlers from other parts of the State that were underclassmen in last year's PIAA finals, including three defending State champions.

It's a rough road to the top, but it started at Franklin last weekend and continues at Meadville Saturday.

Dick Thompson proved it can be done a few years ago. He opened the door, an invitation to the wrestler who wants it bad enough.

UAVL Playoff for East Forest, Sparta Set

Finish in Tie for Lead; Eagles, Wolverines Win

West Forest came from behind in the last 2:30 last night to upset East Forest and send the Upper Allegheny Valley League into a playoff tonight.

The playoff between Sparta and the Bears, both 10-2, will be held at Youngsville at 8 p.m. Tickets will be sold only at the door. The winner of this game will meet the Erie County representative, Wattsburg, in Meadville Friday night.

The Indians tripped the Bears 80-73 while Sparta, the other party in the playoff rolled over Eisenhower by a 113-68 final.

Other action around the area saw Youngsville whip Tidioute 66-45, Sheffield thump Ridgway 91-52, Brookway roll over Johnsonburg 63-39 and Jamestown edge Dunkirk 66-55.

In the game at Tionesta the lead sawsawed back-and-forth with East Forest gaining a 69-67 win over the Indians with two and half minutes left to play.

Tony Kline and Randy Custer took it upon themselves to lead a rally for the Indians. Both shooters found the range for jump shots from 10 to 15 feet from the basket.

The comeback overshadowed the record-breaking performance by East Forest's Pat McClellan. He set a new school mark with 44 points, breaking his old mark of 43 set earlier in the season.

The Indians were paced by Kline with 22, Custer with 19, Bill Kiser and Al Flick with 12 apiece and Rick Hester with 11 points.

McClellan was the only Bear in double figures. West Forest held a five-point half time bulge and still held a three point advantage after three periods.

To gain the tie for the league lead, the Spartans poured the offensive coals to the fire and romped past the sagging Eisenhower Knights.

Sparta put six men in double figures with Elden Miller scoring 24 and Bob Troyer 22 to lead the attack. Bruce Allen had 14 while Don Minnick, Hal Tubbs and Weldon Davis all tallied 11 for the Spartans.

Dave Van Cise with 21 and Gary Fry with 20 led the Knights. Eisenhower played without the services of their big gun Bob Burlingame. Others in double figures for the losers were Allen Swanson with 11 and Bill McFarland with 10 points.

Sparta took a 26-10 lead at ter one quarter. At the half they led 48-33. In the second half they proceeded to outscore the Knights 65-35.

Sparta hit 51 field goals to 25 for the Knights.

Youngsville closed out its season with a win over the Tidioute Bulldogs. The Eagles, though scoring on only two of 11 tries from the foul line, managed to roll to an early lead and coast home to the win.

Ron Knapp paced all scorers with 20 points. Milt Johnson was the only other Eagle in double digits. He tallied 12 points. Tidioute was led by Harry Hopkins with 16 points and Ed Ziegler with 12 tallies.

The Eagles jumped to a 20-6 lead after one period. At the half Youngsville held a 34-15 advantage. In the second half, with the reserves going most of the way for the Eagles, they still outscored the Bulldogs 32-30.

Tidioute made half as many field goals as the Eagles, 10 compared to 32. They did better at the free throw line with 13 of 23.

In the junior varsity game Youngsville posted a 63-24 win over the Bulldog reserves.

Sheffield overcame a slow first period to rout Ridgway in an Allegheny Mountain League game. Wayne Swanson tallied 28 points to break open the game.

Swanson had only one point in the first period as the Wolverines fell behind 17-13. In the second period Swanson found the range for 15 points and the Wolverines ripped the cords for 32. At the half the Sheffield five held a 45-32 lead.

In the second half the Wolverines got red-hot and outscored the Elkers by a 46-20 total.

Jeff Scalise and Ray Morrison each had 18 for the Wolverines while Mike Steffan found the range for another 13. Ron Zamoski and Dan Pierce led the Elkers with 21 and 12 points respectively.

Brookway clinched a tie for the lead in the AML with a 62-39 win over Johnsonburg.

The Wolves and the St. Mary's Flying Dutchmen each have 7-1 records and will meet again next Tuesday, probably at DuBois.

Tom Green and Pat Paruso led the Rovers with 19 and 13 points. Leading the Rams was Bernie Kanski with nine points.

Brookway outscored the Rams in every period. They jumped to a 31-17 half time advantage. In the second half they outscored Johnsonburg by a 32-22 margin.

Jamestown scored well in the first and fourth quarters last night to down Lake Shore Conference rival, Dunkirk.

Jim Brunenavsk sparked the Red Raiders with 16 key points. Aiding him were Don Johnston with 11 and Bill Ferry with an equal number.

Both teams hit 26 field goals but the Raiders scored on 14 of 18 from the charity stripe. Dunkirk had only eight tries. They made good on three.

The win made it 16 straight for the Raiders following an opening game loss to Erie Strong Vincent. They face Goshen on Friday.

Joe Frazier Drops Doug Jones in 6

VISITORS GAIN REVENGE

Dragons Drop Last Home Contest to Owls, 74-58

By JOHN GANLEY

The Bradford Owls, remembering a fourth quarter rally by the Dragons in an earlier meeting, erupted in the final frame here last night to break open a close game and hand the locals a 74-58 setback.

Tom Yachinich and John Barry were the sparks to the Owls' attack. The 6-7 Yachinich scored 34 points, Barry tallied 18 times. Yachinich hit for four field goals in every period and added a pair of fouls in the third frame to account for his total.

Barry broke the game open in the fourth period. The Owls led 52-49 with 6:33 left in the game. In the next three minutes and 10 seconds Barry scored 10 of the Owls 16 points as they rolled to a 68-49 margin and put the game out of reach for the Dragons.

Scott Hunter, one of four seniors playing their final home game, hit for 20 points on 10 field goals. Bob Hunter hit 11 points while the other two upper classmen Mike Hesch and Marc Segal canned seven apiece.

The game started out as if neither team wanted to win. After 2:14 of play Yachinich had a chance to get the Owls on the board but missed a foul shot.

Scott Hunter opened the scoring with a short jump shot with 5:02 left in the opening frame. Yachinich got three two-pointers compared to a single foul shot for the Dragons by Bob Hunter to put the Owls ahead 6-3 with 3:04 left. Barry of the Owls and Segal exchanged field goals to make the count 8-6. Yachinich scored on a tip-in to put the Owls on top, 10-6, with 1:40 left.

In the final 1:15 of the period, Scott Hunter, usually a reliable foul shooter missed four times from the charity stripe. He did score on a field goal as did Mike Hesch. The Owls took an 11-10 lead on a foul shot by Ed Crawford.

The second period was a real oddity as basketball goes. Both teams scored 19 points. Both teams hit on nine of 16 shots from the floor. To climax the frame both teams had nine rebounds.

In the second period Segal hit a jump shot in the first 10 seconds of the period to give the lead. Jay Roof countered for the Owls with a three-point play a half minute later to give Bradford a 14-12 edge.

Warren never led throughout the remainder of the game. Bob Hunter tallied three times from the floor including a steal and a layup just before the buzzer. Segal and Scott Hunter each had four points and Hesch added three to the Dragons' offense.

Besides Yachinich's eight, Roof scored seven to account for 15 of the Owls 19 markers.

Bradford took a 30-29 lead into the locker room. Late in the third quarter the signs started to show. The Dragons were getting tired, their shots were falling short, they weren't hitting the boards with the same gusto they did in the first half.

As a result the Dragons fell behind 51-47 at the end of three periods, but it could have been worse had Scott Hunter not scored two field goals in the waning seconds of the period. In the third period the Dragon captain tallied 10 of his 20 points. Mike Hackett, Bob Hunter, Hesch and O'Neil each hit a basket as the Dragons scored 18 times to 21 for the Owls.

Yachinich had his best period of the game with 10 points. Ed Crawford tallied five and Barry hit for four.

Bradford led for the complete period. Their advantage ranged between one and eight points.

Crawford hit a foul shot for the Owls and Scott Hunter dropped a short jump shot. With 6:33 left the Owls were ahead only 52-49.

At this point Barry took over for the District 9-A champions. He hit a long jumper from the corner, a driving layup, a pair of layups following missed shots by his teammates and capped it off with a brace from the foul line.

For intents and purposes the game was over with 3:08 left and the Owls on top 68-49. The Warren seniors bowed out with 1:10 left in the game when Coach Joe Shantz put in the shock troops.

Yachinich's performance, possibly the best by an opposing player this year, included 34 points and 23 of his team's 49 rebounds.

The Owls shot better than 50 per cent as they made 32 of 62 shots from the floor. Warren hit on 26 of 68 tries from the floor for 38 per cent.

Pine Valley Cagers Bump TMO in Taft

The Warren Times Mirror and Observer basketball team dropped an 89-79 decision to Pine Valley in the Taft Recreation League of Jamestown at Lincoln Junior High School Monday night.

Three players in the game scored 30 points or more as the Pine Valley five revenge an earlier 75-68 setback at the hands of the Times Mirror and Observer.

The victors had two players, Dick Mansfield and Jerry Skurcenski, over 30. Mansfield had 30 and Skurcenski, the former Geneva College ace, had 31.

Warren's high scorer was Bob Winterburn with 30 markers.

The scoring of Mansfield in the opening three periods put the Pine Valley crew ahead while 10 points by Skurcenski in the final period iced the win. Winterburn's 11 point out-break in the final period was enough to pull the TMO from 16 points back.

Warren took a seven point, 21-14, lead after one period but fell behind 42-40 at the half. In the third period Pine Valley outscored the locals 28-15 to post the big lead.

The local cagers had three more players in double figures. They were Jim McElrath and Sam Koebley with 10 points each and Ron Isackson with 21 markers.

Warren lost the game in the field as they scored only 32 field goals to 40 for Pine Valley. At the foul line the TMO scored on 11 of 15 while the winners canned nine of 14 tries.

Pine Valley 14 28 29 18 89
Warren TMO 21 19 15 24 79

The Dragons hauled in 33 rebounds, with Scott Hunter getting 10.

The Dragons played without the services of Randy Jones, ear infection, and Steve Tundel, tonsillitis. Both boys are doubtful for the season finale at Oil City.

In the junior varsity preliminary the Warren reserves blew a lead which they held for three quarters and fell to the Little Owls 44-36. In the final period the Warren JV's were outscored 15-4. Rob Loranger led the Dragons with 16 points. Joe Monago tallied 11 for the Owls.

1967 AMERICAN LEAGUE OUTLOOK

Looks Like Another Oriole Year

(Editor's Note: Yesterday, Joseph M. Sheehan, baseball expert for the New York Times, assessed each National League team's prospects for the 1967 season. Today's article covers the American League.)
By JOSEPH M. SHEEHAN
(c) N.Y. Times News Service

Baltimore Orioles

The World Champion Orioles, a runaway winner in 1966, have breakout potential again. There are some reservations about the solidity of their pitching but they have enough depth on their staff to be protected against anything but a wholesale breakdown. They also have power and a sound defense.

Jim Palmer, Steve Barber, Wally Bunker and Dave McNally figure to be their principal starters, with Eddie Fisher, Stu Miller and Moe Drabowsky sharing the relief burden. It's an impressive cast.

With Boog Powell at first, Dave Johnson at second, Luis Aparicio at short and Brooks Robinson at third, the infield is a set, superior unit.

Frank Robinson, the Triple-Crown and Most Valuable Player award winner of 1966, leads a capable outfield.

It shapes up as another Oriole year.

Minnesota Twins

Outdistanced by the Orioles last season after having won the pennant in 1965, the Twins feel they have closed the gap and have a good chance to get back on top. They base their optimism on deals with the Angels for Dean Chance and the Senators for Ron Kline. These trades obviously bolstered their pitching. But to swing them, they had to sacrifice power and their infield defense is still suspect.

With Chance joining Jim Kaat, Jim Grant, Jim Perry, Dave Boswell and Jim Merritt, the Twins are deep in starters. Their pitching should keep the Twins competitive and with a return to top form by Versalles and more consistent hitting, they could put real pressure on the Orioles.

Detroit Tigers

The Tigers have a solid, balanced squad that should give a good account of itself. Mayo Smith, a new manager, hopes that tightening the infield defense and strengthening the bullpen will give the left to put heat on the Orioles.

Denny McLain, Mickey Lolich, Earl Wilson and Dave Wickersham, who won 60 games among them in 1966, will form the starting rotation.

Chicago White Sox

The White Sox, as usual, have quality pitching in quantity.

TRIBE'S NEW PILOT

Joe Adcock (left) hands his signed two-year contract to Cleveland Indian president Gabe Paul as manager of the Tribe. Adcock will depend on a solid pitching staff and improved hitting to boost Cleveland's stock in the American League pennant race.

Also, as usual, they are unrepentant on attack. Unless they succeed in beefing up their offense, they cannot be regarded as a serious pennant contender.

They have the enviable choice of selecting their starters from among Joe Horlen, Tommy John, Gary Peters, John Buzhardt, Bruce Howard and Jim O'Toole, obtained from the Reds.

Tommy Agee, the 1966 Rookie-of-the-Year, is set in center and Ken Berry will remain in right. A couple of rookies, Walt Williams, who led the Pacific Coast League in batting with a .330 average, and Ed Stroud, who hit .309 for Indianapolis, will be in the fight for the open left field job.

If their youngsters hit up to their minor league form, the Sox could be a team to watch.

Cleveland Indians

The Indians have first line pitching and power that commands respect. Joe Adcock, their new manager, also inherited a shaky defense and an uncertain bullpen.

Cleveland has strong starters in Sam McDowell, who has the potential to be another Sandy Koufax, Sonny Siebert, who pitched the only no-hitter of 1966, Garv Bell, Luis Tiant and Steve Hargan.

Rocky Colavito, Vic Davalillo and Leon Wagner had a collective letdown at bat last season but remain the probable starting outfielders.

The Indians need tighter and more productive play in all departments to cash in on their pitching riches.

California Angels

By trading with the White Sox for Don Mincher and Jimmie Hall, the Angels stepped up their power and achieved their long-standing objective of a set lineup. But giving up Dean Chance in return cut deeply into their pitching, which was none too strong, at best.

Chance's departure leaves Fred Newman, Marcelino Lopez and George Brunet as the Angels' principal starters.

New York Yankees

Can the Yankees rebound from their 10th place finish of 1966? That's one of the more intriguing baseball questions of 1967. Only the turn of events will provide a definitive answer but, at this stage, it appears the Bombers have enough bounce to escape from the cellar but hardly enough to reach the first division.

If all works out as hoped, the Yankees could have excellent pitching. Mel Stottlemyre, who had an off year in 1966, figures to perform better. Jim Bouton showed signs of restored vitality last season. Al Downing is another established starter and Whitey Ford is planning to give it another try.

Bobby Richardson's retirement and the trading of Clete Boyer make it necessary to rebuild the infield completely. The plan is to try Mickey Mantle at first base and put Joe Pepitone in center.

It's not a formidable squad by past Yankee standards but it looks better than a last-place squad.

Kansas City Athletics

The A's have visions of moving up into the first division, basing this hope largely on a large contingent of developing young pitchers who began to click late last season. They still need considerable upgrading in other departments, however.

Jim Nash, Jim Hunter, Lew Krausse, Paul Lindblad, Chuck Dobson and John Odom compose the group of young pitchers that has Kansas City so excited.

Washington Senators

The Senators have inched upward the last few seasons and hope to continue the trend but at an accelerated pace. It hardly seems likely, though, that their dreams of a first division finish will materialize. They still have many holes.

For example, Pete Richert, who has star potential, and Phil Ortega head an uncertain pitching staff. Camilo Pascual, obtained from the Twins, is an obvious candidate for a rotation job, too, but he has been afflicted with arm miseries the last two seasons.

Boston Red Sox

The Red Sox should score a lot of runs. Their big problem is how to keep opponents from scoring a lot more. Dick Williams, a new manager, inherited what may be the most unimposing pitching staff in the majors.

He will pick his starters from Jim Lonborg, Darrell Brandon, Jose Santiago, Lee Strange, Dave Morehead, Dennis Bennett and the rookies, Gary Waslewski and Bill Rohr.

If by some unlikely miracle, the Red Sox got good pitching performance, they could raise a ruckus.

ACES

Sam McDowell (top) and Sonny Siebert, Cleveland's ace hurlers, will carry the bulk of mound duty for the 1967 Indians. McDowell is expected to recover from an arm injury to win 20 for the Tribe.

Bucs Open Practice, Pizarro Not Around

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Veteran left-hander Juan Pizarro was mysteriously absent yesterday as the Pittsburgh Pirates' pitchers and catchers officially opened spring workouts.

General Manager Joe Brown said he had received no word from Pizarro, purchased from the Chicago White Sox this winter.

Brown declined to say whether disciplinary action would be taken.

AAU Lifts Suspension On Foreign Track Stars

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Amateur Athletic Union, in a swift turn-around, lifted the suspension of 11 foreign collegiate athletes yesterday and announced that steps were being taken to make all foreign students eligible for authorized track and field competition in the United States.

This would include both AAU-sanctioned meets and closed events sponsored by the rival U.S. Track and Field Federation, Col. Don Hult, executive director of the AAU, said.

The action was taken before attorney Theodore Kheel, chairman of the four-man Sports Arbitration Panel set up by a Senate resolution to arbitrate the AAU-USTFF dispute, turned down a request by the USTFF for a hearing on the latest controversy.

The newest furor developed when the AAU suspended the 11 foreign athletes for competing in a USTFF meet here Feb. 10 which lacked AAU sanction.

The AAU insisted that no foreign athlete can compete in a meet — whether he is a collegian or not — without the consent of the ruling athletic body in that country. This, the AAU said, is a rule of the International Track and Field Federation.

The USTFF, an organization made up largely of colleges and high schools, argued that no sanction was needed for a purely school- or closed-meet.

On Feb. 17, the arbitration panel, seeking a temporary settlement, ordered the USTFF to seek sanction for the meet retroactively and the AAU to grant that sanction while lifting the suspension of the affected athletes.

Nothing was done.

Kheel called a press conference yesterday at his mid-town office to announce that he felt the Feb. 17 order had been misunderstood by Father Wilfred Crowley, president and one of the organizers of the USTFF.

Feeling the order was prejudicial to the over-all case being studied by the panel, Father Crowley, a priest in Los Altos, Calif., asked for a hearing. Kheel rejected the request.

and repeated his order that the USTFF apply by telegram immediately for sanction of its Feb. 10 meet. At the same time, he asked the AAU to grant the sanction and lift the suspensions.

Kheel's press conference crossed the surprise AAU action, which Hult said was dictated by David A. Matlin of Los Angeles, the new president of the AAU.

"Mr. Matlin did not want to see athletes penalized while the track and field dispute was being settled," Hult said. "We are taking steps to clear the affected athletes with their home countries."

"In the meantime, we are making them eligible for all authorized events."

The war between the AAU and the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which spawned the USTFF, has been going for six years. There have been periods of dictated peace — such as that prior to the 1964

Olympics in Tokyo.

Kheel announced yesterday that his panel would meet with the two warring parties a final time in New York April 6-7 to review the case.

"Within ten days from that time, we will render a binding decision," Kheel said. This puts the target date at April 17.

In Los Altos, Father Crowley said he was disappointed at the panel's rejection of his proposal for a hearing on the latest dispute.

"There are many new facts and much new evidence which should be considered," he said. "I personally feel that this is a non-legal procedure. We are being ordered to do something without recourse to a hearing."

He said the directive for a retroactive request for AAU sanction would be discussed with the USTFF committee.

"Nothing can be done immediately—it may take days," he added.

Wichita State Shocks ShortHanded, But Game

WICHITA, Kans. (AP) — The Wichita State basketball team, brave but short-in number and night-flew to Cincinnati yesterday for an important Missouri Valley Conference game.

Only six players made the trip — all that was left after Coach Garv Thompson suspended seven players for one game because they missed a bed check last week.

Thompson wore a weak smile as he waited with the little group to board a plane.

"We'll use some kind of zone with a sinking basis," he said. "I'm definitely thinking of slowing the game down. But we will go ahead for the fast break on them. These boys have good over-all speed."

"We will play for the good shot."

Players making the trip average six feet in height and their composite scoring average for the year works out to 5.6 points per game.

Wichita State, at this point, has a mathematical chance at a tie for the Valley basketball title — if the Shockers win the remaining four games and league-leading Louisville loses all its remaining games.

Wichita and Tulsa are tied for second place with 7-3 records. Both Louisville and Tulsa are on Wichita's season-ending schedules.

Penna. Hunters Took More Deer

HARRISBURG (AP) — Hunters took 118,753 deer in the state during the 1966 hunting seasons—nearly 19,000 more than the previous year, the Pennsylvania Game Commission reported yesterday.

Potter County was the leading county for deer with a total harvest of 5,127, the commission said. Other leading counties were Lycoming, 4,666; Centre, 4,493; and Huntingdon, 4,537.

Pro Grid Exhibition Games Slated

Two Pro Loops Will Clash for 1st Time

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — As the pro football merger moves another step closer to its ultimate realization in 1970, teams of the National Football League and American Football League will begin inter-league exhibition games this year.

An Associated Press survey of the various pro teams indicates that there will be 14 or 15 games this coming summer. All of the nine AFL teams will play NFL rivals. However, five NFL teams will not schedule AFL opponents because their pre-season campaigns had been drawn up with contract commitments that could not be altered this year.

The Detroit Lions probably will play two AFL teams and possibly a third against the Denver Broncos. It appears at this time that the Lions, under new head coach Joe Schmidt, will play Buffalo and also will meet San Diego. The sites and dates of the games still are not firm in most cases.

The Philadelphia Eagles, who finished strong last year and went all the way to the Playoff Bowl in Miami, are expected to meet both the New York Jets and the Buffalo Bills.

Tentative scheduling calls for the Los Angeles Rams to take on San Diego, their old cross-town rivals, and the Kansas City Chiefs, who won the AFL title and were defeated by Green Bay in the Super Bowl.

The Dallas Cowboys, defending Eastern Conference kings of the NFL, will take on the Houston Oilers.

Chicago already has announced it will visit Kansas City to play the champion Chiefs.

Both Washington and Baltimore expect to play the Boston Patriots. Atlanta expects to play the Miami Dolphins and the Minnesota Vikings, still without a head coach, are due to face the Denver Broncos.

Several games still are in the delicate negotiating stage. However, Pittsburgh expects to play the San Diego Chargers and the San Francisco 49ers undoubtedly will meet their rivals from across the bay, the Oakland Raiders.

Green Bay's schedule was loaded, so the Packers will not play an AFL team this year. Neither will the New York Giants, Cleveland Browns, St. Louis Cardinals nor New Orleans.

The big doubleheader pairings in Cleveland Aug. 25 will feature Minnesota and Atlanta in one game and Green Bay against Cleveland in the other.

When the NFL regular season starts with the new four-team divisions in each of the eight club conferences, there will be two special playoffs Dec. 23 and Dec. 24 preceding the Dec. 31 title game.

Record Number Fans Saw NFL

HONOLULU (AP) — The National Football League set an attendance record for the sixth consecutive year in 1966 with an official attendance of 5,337,038 for the 105 regular season games.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle announced yesterday the record represented an increase of 703,017 above the 1965 season, or 15.2 per cent.

The NFL played to 86.6 per cent of stadium capacity and had 83 capacity crowds among the 105 games.

Commissioner Rozelle also announced that the NFL took formal action yesterday, accepting New Orleans as the 16th member. The Saints will operate in the 1967 season.

Sports of The Times

Arthur Daley

Clutch Performer

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK — Smoky Burgess looks like a friendly bartender, rotund and jolly. He certainly doesn't look like a ball player. He's 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 197 pounds but the records show that he has been the best pinch-hitter that the big leagues ever produced. Not long ago the little fat man retired at the age of 39 and it would be a gross dereliction of duty to let the likeable butterball escape without at least a farewell.

Even in his baseball dotage last season the amiable Smoky had not lost his touch. He stroked out 21 pinch hits for the White Sox, not far below the top mark for a single season. He had shattered the career record the year before. The uncanny thing about the onetime catcher is that he was an exceptionally gifted clutch operative over a longer stretch of time than anyone.

Back in 1955 the Cincinnati Reds had plenty of muscle but not much else. Since the pennant was far beyond their reach, they set a private goal for themselves, the team record of 221 homers, established by the Giants. The redlegs roared into the final weekend with 220. So Birdie Tebbetts, the manager, called on Burgess to pinch hit.

"Get up there and hit a home run," ordered Birdie.
"Yes, Sir," said the unabashed Smoky.
"Homer or nothing," said Birdie by way of emphasis.
"Yes, Sir," said the obliging Smoky.

Naturally, he hit a home run to tie the record. He was a left-handed hitter with a smooth, lovely swing. Although he got a goodly share of homers, he was primarily a line-drive batsman. As a catcher he brought back no memories of such slick glovemans as Mickey Cochrane or Bill Dickey and yet he was the man who caught Harvey Haddix in the epic 12-inning perfect game which was to end in an agonizing defeat.

If outsiders were fooled by Smoky's appearance, pitchers never were. They knew him for the troublesome hitter he was. But his teammates used to amuse themselves by ribbing him and his bubbling good humor enabled him to enjoy it. They delighted in picking out occupations for him.

"If you didn't know Smoky was a ball player," said one of them one day, "what line of work would you guess for him?"

"A butcher in a supermarket," said one.
"The driver of a beer truck," said another, "The kind who samples his product."

As a matter of fact Smoky was a heavy drinker—but only of milk. Sometimes he consumed as much as a gallon a day. He never has tasted anything alcoholic and doesn't even smoke. Managers have awarded him good conduct medals by the gross lots.

In July of 1965 he stepped up to bat against Pete Ramos at the Yankee Stadium and lined a two-run single to center. It was his 107th pinch hit, tying the record set many years ago by Red Lucas. A few days later he received an emergency call against Terry Fox of the Tigers. The bases were full when Smoky lined a double over third. Every pinch hit thereafter was pure gravy.

The moon-faced Carolinian with the paunch also has all the gregariousness and conversational aptitudes of a bartender. In his younger days, when he was catching regularly, he was as talkative as Yogi Berra. Yet when their paths crossed in the world series they barely spoke to each other.

"Hiya, Smoky," said Berra in his first time at bat.

"Hiya, Yogi," said Burgess. Then silence enveloped them. There was one occasion when Smoky had some success in distracting Stan Musial. He got Stan laughing and the Cardinal wonder player fanned. When he tried it again Musial ignored him and hit a home run.

"I never spoke to him again," said a saddened Smoky. Once his inability to stop talking led to minor trouble. "A skyrocket fly" was hit above the mound and Burgess, the traffic director, took in the situation at a glance and decided Dick Stuart was in best position to make the catch.

"Take it, Dick," he called out.

Then he glanced around the infield at converging ball players and a look of horror spread over his face. Dick Stuart was the first baseman; Dick Gray was at third; Dick Schofield was at second and Dick Groat was at short. Who caught the ball?

Dick did," said Smoky, straight faced.

Maybe Smoky does have the appearance of an unfrocked bartender but he sure was a deadly clutch hitter.

WarrenMenBowling Tourney Next Month

The 21st Annual Warren Bowling Association Championships will be held at Bowldrome from March 11 to April 16. All the bowling will be done on the weekends between these dates.

The schedule presently has five-man teams bowling on Saturdays at 6:30 and 9 p.m., and on Sundays at 1:00 and 3:30 p.m., and again in the evening at 6:30 and 9 p.m.

Singles and doubles will be rolled on Saturdays at 7 and 9 p.m. On Sunday they will start at 1, 3, 5, 7 and 9 p.m. Special arrangements for shift workers can be made by contacting Norm Wooster.

Handicap for the tourney will be based on 66-2-3 per cent of 200 with the use of the bowlers highest first half average.

Entries for the tournament must be in by March 1.

One hundred per cent of all the prize fees will be returned in the form of prizes.

Total fee for a five-man team would be $15 with $7.50 for prizes and equal amount for bowling fees. Doubles would cost a total of $6, with $3 each for prize and bowling fees. Singles cost a total of $3 with $1.50 going for each.

Anyone interested in entering should submit the entry with expense fees, made out in either money order, cashier check, or certified personal check drawn payable to the Warren Bowling Association.

All entries and communications should be made payable to Norm Wooster, Secretary of the W.B.A., 213 North Carver Street, Warren. His telephone number is 723-7157.

Local Boy in Peace Corps To Join TB Control Team

THOMAS R. YERG

Thomas R. Yerg, son of Dr. and Mrs. A. Folmer Yerg, left Tuesday for Bolivia. He is a volunteer in the Peace Corps, attached to a tuberculosis control team. He expects to be assigned to the mining region of Bolivia, at 1,000 feet above sea level or higher elevation.

After he was graduated from Colgate University, Yerg studied in two language institutes in Germany, including the Goethe Institute near Munich. For a summer semester before going to Germany, he did graduate studies in German at New York State University of Buffalo.

Thomas Yerg is very eager to begin working in Bolivia in the Peace Corps. He says he volunteered because, first of all he is deeply interested in people. Other reasons include his interest in languages. His preliminary training for the Bolivian adventure has included intensive work in Spanish language.

Actually he had been training for a Peace Corps in Morocco, but after three months in Galveston, Texas, he was asked to transfer to the South American program. He says the program is an exciting one, as it is an experiment with the Peace Corps to take people with a general background, then after special training, assign them to a specific goal and concentrate in one field. This one, Tuberculosis control, will for the most part be on a person-to-person level with adults. It is a program of prevention and for those who are afflicted, treatment.

On top of six months of training in this country, he will have an additional one month's orientation period in Bolivia. Yerg believes his studies in the sciences in college were a factor in his being given the opportunity to join the Bolivian project. He has had 16 hours of chemistry and 9 hours of botany, four hours of zoology and a semester of calculus. "This is not just another foreign aid type program," he observes. "So much of the foreign aid given by the United States never gets to the people." This program will be on a cooperative community level. The plan is to help communities recognize and solve their own problems under local leadership.

Cite Driver After Crash

Two cars were involved in a head-on collision on Route 6 at Roystone Station, Sheffield, at 5 a.m. yesterday.

State Police Trooper Daniel L. Portzer, who investigated, said a car driven by Steven J. Tuma, 7 Hammell Court, Corning, N.Y., traveling east on Route 6, too fast for conditions, came behind a slow-moving vehicle and was unable to stop in time to avoid a rear-end collision.

Police said the Tuma car then proceeded to attempt to pass and struck a car operated ship, "The Peace Corps member," he adds, "is not going to try to be a leader, but to bring out leadership in a community."

"We start out by working with what is called 'felt needs,'" he explains. For example, if a community feels they might need an athletic field or basketball court, this is undertaken as a community project. After that, other projects, such as sanitation, tuberculosis control or similar undertakings can be suggested.

Although Thomas Yerg's Peace Corps tour is for two years, he says it is altogether possible, with this particular program, that he would extend it for another year or more.

The group which he trained with takes pride in the fact that not one member who completed the training program was "de-selected." About 52 people began. With the rigorous training, about 20 dropped out, before it was completed. Thirty-two completed.

His training for the Bolivian project was in Bothell, Washington, near Seattle, at Camp Armac. First half included intensive cultural studies plus 6 hours a day of Spanish. Second half continued 6 hours daily of Spanish, with intensive technical studies in the field of tuberculosis. This included work in large hospitals for tuberculosis patients.

It will be interesting to hear his reports of his experiences after he gets on the field in Bolivia as a Peace Corps ambassador from Warren, and the U.S.A.

Irvine Man Winner Of Sheffield Award

Lewis L. Jones of Irvine, Pa., won the special award—a $200 Stereo Tape Player for his car—given by Jones Chevrolet, Inc. of Sheffield last Saturday night. The winner of the grand opening event, incidentally, is no relation of the new garage's owner Bob Jones. Col. Henry C. Kerlin, executive vice president of the Warren Area Chamber of Commerce, officiated in the award department.

Allot $87,774 For Instruction

(TMO Harrisburg Bureau)

HARRISBURG — Warren School District has been allotted $87,774.95 in federal funds by the State Department of Public Instruction for a special education program for pupils in its area under the Federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act, department officials said yesterday.

In an application for the funds, approved by the department, local school officials said the grant is for providing remedial instruction in various subjects.

According to the department 530 pupils are concerned in the project. Of this number 310 are pupils in the schools of Warren School District and 220 are pupils in non-public schools within the area of that school district.

Funds for the special program are available from an allocation of $17,000,000 to Pennsylvania for the 1966-67 school year under the federal education act, which is administered in this state by the department.

Payments are made to Warren School District from the grant as the program advances and meets requirements under which the funds were allotted, department officials said.

Chaplain Russo Winner Of Commendation Medal

Major Nicodemus A. Russo, U.S. Army chaplain and well known former Warren resident, recently was awarded the Army Commendation Medal and Certificate of Achievement for his work as Senior Brigade Chaplain, Infantry.

The honor was bestowed on Major Russo, a priest of the Peoria (Ill.) diocese, at a full dress brigade review at Fort Ord, Calif. The certificate for "outstanding performance of duty" read as follows:

"For outstanding service as brigade chaplain. Your patriotism, enthusiasm, devotion to God and Country has marked you as a true and militant servant of your Church. Through your enlightened guidance and deep religious convictions, you have enabled many individuals to strengthen their appreciation of the Army's operations and its attendant problems. Your positive approach to the many varied problems which confronted you, and your consistently positive attitude in their solution have won you the respect and admiration of all with whom you served. Your outstanding performance of duty reflects great credit upon yourself, your Church, the Third Brigade and the military service."

Chaplain Russo is now en route to his new post in Alaska. His previous twelve years in the service have included duty in

Chaplain Russo

Vietnam, Germany and Japan. He is the son of Dominic Russo and the late Mrs. Russo.

Seek Police Reforms Under Commission

The General Assembly is considering a bill that would create a State Crime Commission. The Act is amended by adding a section which states the commission will consist of nine persons including police officials, business, church and civic leaders and persons qualified in criminal law, psychiatry and penology. One of the members would be designated as chairman by the Governor.

Warren's Police Chief Michael Evan, co-chairman of the legislative committee of the Pennsylvania Police Chiefs Association, said that out of 15 points contained in the House Bill, nine pertained directly to the area of police and police work. He said the Association feels that a minimum of three police officers, under the circumstances, should be named to the State Crime Commission.

The points in general include recommending reforms and improvements in state and local police policies and tactics; advisability of establishing a special police school; recommend a certain percentage of taxes to provide more police, especially beat patrolmen with sufficient salary and other important facets.

During the 1965 session, the PCA, introduced a minimum wage bill and a companion bill which sought to increase the cost of inspection stickers from 10 cents to 60 cents, 50 cents to remain in the individual counties to subsidize, according to the size of the force, police pay.

It is the Association's intent this session to introduce a minimum wage bill which would affect wages throughout the Commonwealth. This would not, however, affect Warren, the chief said — but those distressed areas in Pennsylvania where police officers have not been paid for two or three months. He noted these men, for the most part, cannot quit, since they have not yet accumulated sufficient pension time.

The legislative committee meets in Harrisburg next week.

To State Hospital

Maurice Brennan, 40, of Smethport, was taken to Warren State Hospital yesterday, where he will be held for observation or order of Judge Glenn E. Mencer and McKean County district attorney William Potter. Brennan was taken into custody at 4:45 p.m. Sunday by police officials, following a complaint by Brennan's 13-year-old daughter that her father was threatening to kill her mother. If adjudged sane, he will be returned to face an assault charge before a peace justice.

LOCAL DOCTOR ONE OF FEW TO VISIT RULER

President Francois Duvalier of Haiti invited a group of doctors from the International College of Surgeons to his palace for a short visit early in February. One of the group of 10 selected was Winnipeg Free Press writer Gene Telpner. He was the first newsman to see Dr. Duvalier in several years. In the picture from

Dr. Fino Guest in Fortified Palace of President of Haiti

A Warren doctor recently had the experience of a visit with probably the most heavily guarded man in the world—a dictator who never sees reporters or gives out interviews.

Dr. Julius A. Fino, with offices at 308 Market st., enjoyed the unique distinction while on a visit to Haiti, where a group of doctors from the International College of Surgeons was invited for a special audience.

This was arranged months earlier when the International College, representing some 70 countries, informed the Haitian government that one of the stops on a sea-going medical seminar would be Port-au-Prince.

Dr. Francois Duvalier, president for life of Haiti, still called Papa Doc by the outside world, proved an interesting host despite the heavy guard constantly at his side and the fort-like surroundings of his palace.

Gene Telpner of the Winnipeg (Manitoba) Free Press, who was a member of the party of 10 allowed to see the Haitian ruler, writes in part as follows concerning the visit with Dr. Duvalier:

"And the name Papa Doc is no misnomer. He is a full-fledged doctor of medicine who studied in the U.S. at the University of Michigan."

"The palace grounds are swarming with armed guards, and even our official car was halted by a rifle held in front of the windshield by an alert sentry. Apparently our driver gave the correct word and our party of 10 was admitted."

"Although not visible from the outside, the shrubbery on the palace grounds conceals what appear to be anti-tank guns, machine guns, cannon, and there are tanks plus armored cars inside the palace walls."

"A number of armed civilians are also scattered around the palace grounds, and at the door we were greeted pleasantly by a pistol-toting officer. Two more armed soldiers were in the palace lobby at the foot of a winding staircase covered by a red carpet."

"At a signal from the officer the guards stepped aside so our party could start up the stairway to the check-point at the top."

"A list of our names and qualifications had been submitted prior to our visit to the palace, and it was obvious that the officers in charge of the various check-points had copies of the list."

"Finally the great moment arrived, and Dr. Duvalier entered the room flanked by two personal bodyguards. One of the men, who appeared to be his main personal guard, was a huge, hulking uniformed officer at least six foot, three-inches tall and I would estimate weighing about 275 pounds. Not once during the entire two-hour session at the palace did even a flicker of a smile cross this giant's face."

"Dr. Duvalier was dressed in a dark grey suit, he wore a vest, and his tie held a single pearl. He is much smaller than I expected, his hair is heavily tinged with grey, and when he smiles there is a gold tooth clearly visible."

"A radio crew set up a microphone in front of Papa Doc, but first he circled the room and shook hands with me and the visiting doctors. Then came the obvious point that when the president for life speaks to an audience, they remain silent throughout the entire ceremony."

"We are a small, underprivileged country, and we try to do our best, 'was how I understood some of the doctor's words as he continued his speech in French. Although we did not realize it at the time, some of Dr. Duvalier's speech was being broadcast live to the nation."

Telpner also wrote of a short talk with the Haitian president, who recalled visits he had made to Winnipeg and Montreal. "We shall be represented at your Expo 1967 in Montreal," he said. But it's doubtful if he shall come."

Dr. Duvalier shook hands with all the doctors as the interview closed.

L/B Magnificent Fashion Floor The Second

Town Crier

... By Les Rickey

I can tell the truth now because they've blown the lid off the Central Intelligence Agency's activities on college campuses. Idaho does not exist. It's all a CIA scheme.

Idaho was invented some years ago by Ramsey Pfitzgreber as an ingenious solution to the probability of an attack by air on the United States. The theory was that if we added an extra state somewhere along the northern tier, it would hook up the entire configuration of the country just enough to make any bombs land off target.

You can immediately see the wisdom of this decision. You just add a couple of hundred thousand square miles somewhere inside the country, particularly in a desolate place where you can't check it out too well, and bingo—you've got security. No country, for instance, can hope to bomb Chicago because they drop the whole shooting match into an Iowa cornfield.

"You sure this is where Chicago is supposed to be, Max?" "We're right on target, according to this CIA map," the pilot answers. And pow—the bombardier pulls the switch, wiping out another bumper crop.

I know it sounds far-fetched to you, but intelligence experts find it more than believable. Just look at World War II. The Japanese knew about it and that's why they decided on Pearl Harbor; the Islands are too small to play those kinds of games with.

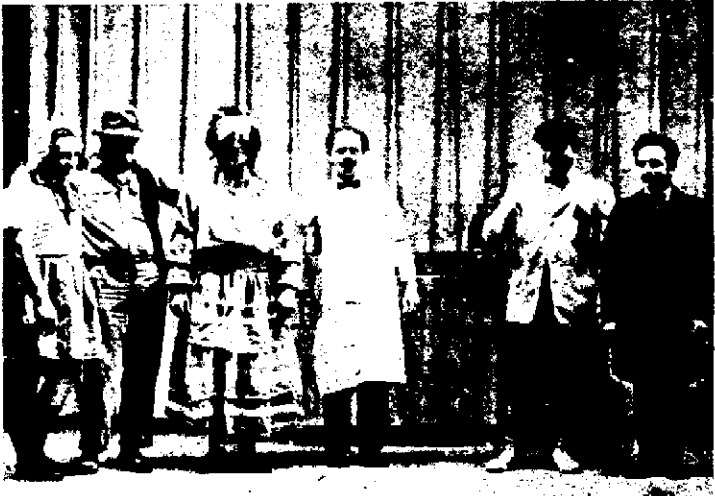

Where did I learn about this startling piece of information? Well, it's all covered in Freshman Espionage in most colleges.

Wanderings

by Marion Honhart

"FATHER, OH FATHER, COME HOME with me now!" cried out in anguish in an incomparable falsetto by Little Mary, tore at the heart strings of an enrapt audience present Monday night at the North Warren PTA Fathers Night production of "Ten Barrooms In A Night"—a sensitive, parodical rendition of a melodrama of similar name. Staged in the auditorium of the

A SILVER ANNIVERSARY OPEN HOUSE will honor the Leonard Kibbey on Sunday afternoon at the Pittsfield Community Center from 2 to 5 o'clock. Hosts for the happy occasion will be the children of the couple, Marjean and William. They invite all relatives, neighbors and friends to attend.

MINIATURES: The Donald Greens of Cable Hollow entertained the G.M. & V. Birthday Club at dinner. The honored guest was birthday celebrant, Clyde Miller.

Russell Thursday Evening Circle is meeting tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the home of Mrs. Willis Phillips. Mrs. Clarence Johnson Jr. is co-hostess. Mrs. Robert Young of Warren will be the guest speaker.

Tomorrow the Pre-School Mothers Group of Sugar Grove will meet at 8 p. m. in the elementary school cafeteria. Mrs. Francis Bauer's program will be on "The Importance of Physical Fitness". Caution: wear slacks or other suitable clothing for group participation.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Regarding the letter from the wife who felt "left out" because her husband refused to let her see him without his partial plate:

Our wonderful father used a hair-darkener for years. He kept the bottle hidden in his tackle box on the closet shelf. Mother knew it and so did us kids, but we wouldn't have let on for anything in the world. We allowed Father to keep his "secret" because to have done otherwise would have been cruel.

Part of successful living is the ability to make allowances for the harmless personality quirks of others. It cost us nothing to let Father think he had us fooled. To the day he died he believed he had "put it over," and I'm sure he felt good about it.—FOUR CHILDREN WHO LOVED HIM

DEAR CHILDREN: Somebody put some solid ideas into your heads and I'll bet it was your mother.

One of the most admirable of all traits is to be in the know and not have to advertise it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 23 and have been going with an attractive girl who is 20. A few weeks ago she threw a half-caten ice cream cone out of the car into the street. I pulled over to the curb, got out, scooped up the mess and put it in the nearest trash container. She said I must be some kind of a nut.

On our next date she threw a candy wrapper out the car window. Again I stopped, picked it up and kept it in the glove compartment. She called me a "prissy old maid."

Last night she threw a malted milk container into the street. I told her THIS time SHE was going to pick it up. She got mad, said I was a jerk and refused. I picked up the container and drove her home. She got out of the car, and slammed the door in my face.

This morning I received a telegram saying that unless I sent a wire of apology she would never speak to me again. Am I petty and domineering as she insists?—MR. CLEAN

DEAR MR.: The girl sounds immature and plenty sloppy. Some cities fine litterbugs as much as $50 for such antics.

You owe her no apology. And think twice before you accept hers. She sounds like bad news.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is 48 years old and we have been married for 23 years. I am telling you this at the beginning so you won't get the idea that we are teen-age newlyweds. Before my husband goes to work he stops off at his mother's house for coffee and a bagel. If he isn't there by 8:45 she calls up and says, "Is Irving sick?"

On his way home from work he stops at his mother's again. She gives him a bowl of chicken soup or some chopped herring—just enough to spoil his appetite for MY supper.

Before he goes to bed he telephones his mother to say good night. If he doesn't call her by 11:00 she calls and asks, "Is Irving all right?"

This has been going on for 23 years and I am fed up. Am I unreasonable? Tell me what to do.—IRVING'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: If this has been going on for 23 years you should be used to it. Irving is not going to change, so accept, with grace, his attachment to his mother because it will last as long as she lives.

To solve some of the frustrations, disappointments and disillusionments of married life, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect from Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Jennifer Anne Myers Bride of James Stewart Beckley, Jr.

The marriage of Jennifer Anne Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart J. Myers of Warren, to James Stewart Beckley Jr., son of Mrs. Stewart Beckley of Warren, and the late Mr. Beckley, took place at 7:30 p. m. on Saturday, February 18, in the home of the bride's parents on Market street.

The Rev. J. Robert Bath of the Unitarian Church in Duxbury, New York, performed the double ring candlelight ceremony in front of the living room fireplace, which was decorated for the occasion with magnolia leaves and white candelabra covered with white roses, Fujimums and smilax.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory wool silk with a chape train and a yoke and sleeves of re-embroidered wool lace and seed pearls. Her floor length veil, attached to a matching lace and pearl headdress was of ivory silk illusion and she carried a bouquet of white roses and Stephanotis.

Miss Pamela Weston Myers was her sister's maid of honor, while Mrs. Robert F. Clark of Greenbrae, California, sister of the groom, served as bridesmaid. The Misses Sandra Judith Myers and Sharon Dunham Myers, both sisters of the bride, were junior bridesmaids.

The maid of honor wore a empire gown of sunflow silk taffeta. The other attendants wore similar dresses of the same fabric and all had elbow length matching veils attached to Dior bows of sunflow silk. The attendants carried Stephanotis and sweetheart roses in shades of gold and orange.

Frank A. Leamy Jr. of Kent, Ohio, was his cousin's best man. The ushers were Charles O'Connor of Warren, Robert F. Clark of Greenbrae, California, brother-in-law of the groom, and Richard W. Dunham Jr. of East Point, Georgia, cousin of the bride.

MRS. JAMES STEWART BECKLEY JR.
(McGarry Studio)

A reception was held in the home immediately following the nuptial rites.

The bride, an alumna of Warren Area High School, was formerly employed at Allegheny Valve Co.

The bridegroom, who is president and manager of C. Beckley Inc. of Warren was graduated from the Lawrenceville School in Lawrenceville, New Jersey, and attended the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia before graduating from the Naval Air Training Command at Pensacola, Florida. Mr. Beckley is a first lieutenant in the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve.

After a trip to Acapulco, Mexico, the couple will reside in Warren.

Clubwomen Plan Annual Convention

Many federated clubwomen of Pennsylvania will be actively engaged these next several months in plans for the 70th annual convention of the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs, which will be held at the Penn Harris Hotel, Harrisburg, May 24, 25, 26, 1967.

Mrs. H. Clair Henry of Brookville, president of the state federation, who met with members of the convention committee in Harrisburg in January, has announced the theme for the convention will be "Keys to Knowledge", as chosen by the state program chairman, Mrs. Miles S. Wright of Greensburg.

Mrs. George R. Metzendorf of Camp Hill is general chairman of the convention, with Mrs. Carl F. Himmelberger of Hershey serving as vice-chairman. State chairman of publicity is Mrs. Howard A. Irvine, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Jack H. Morrison of Sharon, state vice-chairman of publicity will have charge of the Press and Log Book display and contest. Mrs. Donald Starr of Mechanicsburg, junior director of the South Central District is serving as junior chairman of the convention, with Mrs. Douglas Hoskins of Shiremanstown as vice-chairman.

Mrs. Albert Stefacin of Camp Hill has charge of Registration and Reservations; Mrs. C. Kenneth Dyer of Camp Hill, will take care of arrangements for the state banquet, and Mrs. Ralph Horst of Hershey, the Presidents' Luncheon; Miss Clara Beck of Middletown is chairman for the Welcome Luncheon, and Mrs. Lloyd Wagener of Dillsburg, the Prayer Breakfast.

In charge of credentials will be Mrs. C. D. Crawford of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Maynard Smith of Harrisburg will take care of decorations and Mrs. Mervin G. Holland, Jr. of Camp Hill, display space; Mrs. John Yingst of Hummelstown, doorkeepers; Mrs. Henry J. Schaefer of Harrisburg, envelopes. Co-chairmen of hostesses will be Mrs. William Emery of New Cumberland, and Mrs. Arch Campbell of York; Mrs. William Schuchman of Leomoyne will take care of Information and Lost & Found; Mrs. Darwin Roush of Millerstown, Flag Committee; Mrs. D. Boulton Musser of Camp Hill, first aid; Mrs. Lawrence B. Shimer of McConnellsburg, courtesy resolutions; Mrs. Robert G. Crist of Camp Hill is serving as chairman of platform seating; Mrs. Jeremiah Rohr of Shippensburg, placards; Mrs. James Grandon of Mechanicsburg, chairman of processionals; Mrs. John W. Barnhart of Harrisburg, property and supplies; Mrs. Roy W. Foltz of Carlisle, special rooms; Mrs. David Opperman of Lemoyne, timekeepers.

Dr. Yerg Discusses 'Diabetes'

Diabetes Mellitus was the topic discussed by A. Follmer Yerg, M.D., at the Monday afternoon meeting of the Woman's Club Community Service Department.

Dr. Yerg said about 9 out of every 1000 persons have diabetes and that 80 per cent are 45 years or older, 40 per cent are 65 years or older and 5 per cent are children under 15 years of age. According to the doctor, diabetes can be inherited, especially if both parents have this disease. He stated that diabetic parents should have their children examined frequently; in the early stages some patients can be given various sulfonureas which stimulate the function of the pancreas.

The speaker defined diabetes as "a chronic disease genetically determined and directly attributable to a deficiency in insulin activity". He said "the greatest disturbance caused by this disease is the utilization of carbohydrate thru the utilization of fat and protein" and mentioned that the total food and mineral metabolism is affected.

Some of the outstanding symptoms of diabetes, according to Dr. Yerg, are general weakness, excessive appetite and thirst, polyuria, and itching of the skin. Twelve percent of adults, he said, are without recognizable symptoms, but diabetes is discovered when they are treated for cataract, retinitis, pain, coldness, gangrene, skin disorder like boils and carbuncles, arteriosclerosis, coronary insufficiency, etc. The physician also stated that the most constant pathological changes in diabetes are those of degenerative processes in the circulatory system, eyes, kidneys and nervous system.

The doctor said that a good diagnosis of the disease should include the family history relating to diabetes, laboratory tests for blood sugar and urine sugars, checking all skin problems and neurological problems and general history of weight loss of an unexplained cause.

In tracing the history of this disease, Dr. Yerg mentioned the Ancient Period to 1675 A.D. when Celsus wrote to polyuria without pain, but with emaciation and danger; the Diagnostic Period of 1675-1796; the Period of Empiric Treatment, 1796-1850; when drugs were given to reduce appetite and protein was restricted and the Modern or Experimental Period of 1850 to the present time. He added that Joslin discovered that fat reduction increased the patient's health and that Allen initiated the balanced diet.

During the Banting Era of 1922-26, the physician stated that insulin was introduced for treatment and during the Best Era of 1944 doctors were given a selection of some eight varieties of insulin; their action may be characterized as rapid, intermediate prolonged and combined. Dr. Yerg explained that the ideal dose is to give one dose before breakfast that will last 24 hours, but that the best dosage has to be carefully worked out for each patient. Dr. Yerg said that the over-weight diabetic is relatively resistant to insulin and should reduce to the ideal weight by following the diet prescribed by his physician.

During the business meeting Mrs. Harold Reinhard appointed Mrs. Roy E. Boettcher, Mrs. Donald Wischer and Mrs. Samuel Bonavita to serve as the nominating committee.

SMALL OYSTERS FOR CUBANS
MIAMI (AP) — Cubans like small oysters. Exiles here found only big ones until enterprising Pedro M. Martinez located a supply source in Maryland's Chesapeake Bay area.

"Out there the oysters are so big that people throw away the little ones," Martinez reported. "So I arrange for the rejects."

As a result, exiles are eating something similar to "ostiones de Sagua" (oysters from Sagua, Cuba, a midget species), to which they were accustomed at home.

A New You by Emily Wilkens Glow-Glow Girls

I often see women who have a special glow. It isn't just their makeup; their faces are brighter and more radiant. What's the secret? Miss Joanne D.

The secret is very probably the wonderful glow that comes from good health. No amount of makeup can compensate for a balanced diet, fresh air and exercise, enough beauty sleep.

Troublesome Teeth

My teeth are quite dull and yellowish-looking. I brush them regularly and visit the dentist twice a year. Is there any way to make them look whiter? Mrs. Theresa G.

Try brushing with baking soda at least once a day. Once or twice a week, use a mouthwash solution of a few teaspoonsful of household peroxide in half a glass of warm water. The new special pink toothpastes tend to tint gums harmlessly, making teeth look whiter by comparison. If it becomes you, a lipstick with a bluish hue also makes teeth seem all the whiter.

Seductive Shadow

I'm sixteen years old and have been having a big argument with my mother on whether or not I should wear eye shadow. My mother thinks I'm too young, but my boyfriend always compliments me when I wear it. What do you think? Miss Jane K.

Sixteen seems a bit young for eye shadow, except perhaps for a very special occasion. It would certainly not be appropriate for daytime wear.

Wig Woes

My hair is very fine and terribly hard to style. My husband and I are going on a cruise next month, and I've been thinking about buying a wig. Is it true that they're very uncomfortable to wear? Mrs. Betty G.

Not at all. Wigs are now attached to a light, airy base and can hardly be felt by the wearer. However, it isn't wise to wear a wig day in and day out. Some of the time, plan to keep your hair neat with a pretty bandeau or scarf.

Heavy Hair

The hair on my arms is very dark and heavy. Should I shave it off? Miss Anne F.

Absolutely not! Instead, bleach the hair with a peroxide solution (oil bleach mixed with twice the amount of 20 per cent bleaching peroxide). Wax treatments are also good for excess hair on arms, but the process is rather expensive and preferably should be done by an expert. A depilatory is effective too, but the regrowth tends to be stubby. If you can get away with it, bleaching is your best bet.

STUDENTS GROWING FOOD

LUCKNOW, India (AP) — "One student, one plant" is a slogan adopted by state schools in an effort to create an awareness among students of the government's campaign to grow more food. Each student will be encouraged to grow and care for at least one plant.

SAVED FROM SOUP

CHIOGGIA, Italy (AP) — A fishing boat in this north Adriatic port brought in a rare catch, indeed: A "massive" sea turtle weighing 409 pounds. That would make a lot of turtle soup but a zoologist beat the cooks to it and bought the turtle for a wildlife collection.

CATHEDRAL QUARTET TO APPEAR

In line with previous presentations of outstanding groups in his church, the Rev. Harold G. Powell, pastor of the First Church of God on the corner of Madison Avenue and Hammond Street, is proud to announce that the Cathedral Quartet will appear here tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock. The quartet is affiliated with Rex Humbard and The Cathedral of Tomorrow in Akron, Ohio, and may be seen every Sunday on the Johnstown TV program. All members of the church and friends are invited.

Hints From Heloise

Scorch Remover

Hi There:

Move in close gals, so I can tell you what I just discovered quite by accident. It works like a miracle and I don't even know why...

I had some cigarette burns on my 100% nylon carpet. While walking through the living room one morning I happened to have a plastic ruler in my hand. Holding it as one would a knife, I scooped over and rubbed a scorched spot very briskly with the corner of the plastic ruler. The scorch was immediately removed!

Was I amazed!

On another spot where a cigarette had literally burned to the back of the rug, all the nap was gone.

I then then went to a corner of the carpet where it wouldn't show and pulled out a few of the fibers with a pair of tweezers. Putting some good glue in the burned hole in the rug, I mashed the fibers down into the carpet and pressed it hard with my hand. Then I put a small piece of waxed paper over it and weighed it down with a book.

Man, alive, was I ever happy!

You might try it on whatever kind of rug you have, if it has a scorch or burn. You have nothing to lose, as the damage has already been done. Heloise

P. S. Since then, I bought a decent ashtray that will really hold a cigarette. Preventive measures, you know...

DEAR HELOISE:

I never throw away a large tablecloth that is torn.

I cut it down to a smaller size (bridge or whatever) and make matching napkins from the leftover material.

Old tablecloths also make nice kitchen towels. They are so soft and usually lint free.

Mrs. H. Zager

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

For ages, I have tried to get rid of a certain old rusty wastebasket. I've put it out with trash in it, trash on it, and trash completely surrounding it in the big can.

No matter how cleverly I camouflage it, after the collector is gone, there sits the can!

Jeanne

DEAR HELOISE:

You know what a task it is to polish between the tines of forks?

Try keeping a pipe cleaner attached (use a rubber band) to your silverware polish jar or bottle. Just dip the pipe cleaner in the polish and shine away between those pesky tines!

Summer Campouts Being Arranged

Henry Vaughn, president of the Kinzua Campers, presided at the business meeting recently, during which committees for the summer campouts were listed. The first campout is to be held in May at the Brokenstraw campgrounds. The Kinzua Campers intend to invite different camping groups of the area to attend.

The March 19 meeting will be held again at the Warren Grange Hall, with the Edward Lees and Henry Vaughns on committee. An invitation is extended to all campers in the area to attend the monthly meetings which fall on the third Sunday of each month. The indoor meetings always begin with a 1 p. m. twelve dinner.

When the weather permits the outdoor rendezvous will once again be enjoyed on the third weekend of each month. For an epicurean appetizer, top stuffed-egg halves with smoked oysters. The oysters come in flat cans — like sardines — and are available in food markets, especially those that carry fancy specialties.

The Halls Of Ivy

Among those named to the Dean's List at Villa Maria College in Erie was Molly Oriole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Oriole of 7 South South St. Miss Oriole is in her junior year of studies and is majoring in Latin, with a minor in Spanish. She is a 1964 graduate of Warren Area High School.

At Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, David W. Sundheimer a sophomore, has been selected as a member of the cast for the university's production next month of the musical "Brigadoon." This is a cooperative production by the Bucknell Department of Music, the University Theatre and the Opera Workshop. It will be presented on March 9, 10 and 11.

David is a Warren Area High School graduate, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Sundheimer of 11 Jefferson Avenue.

The bidding:
West North East South
1 Pass Pass Double
Pass 2 NT Pass 2 NT
Pass 3 NT Pass Pass

Opening lead: Five of ♠.
When West's opening bid of one heart was passed around to South, the latter properly reopened proceedings by making a take-out double and his partner dutifully responded with two clubs. With protection in all suits and two stoppers in hearts, South was warranted in making a try for game by bidding two no trump. North's nearly solid six card suit provided the basis to accept the invitation and carry on to game.

West opened the five of hearts. East played the jack and South won the trick with the ace. A small diamond was led, at trick two and it is West's play at this point that determines the fate of the deal. Observe that, if he follows with the eight, dummy's queen will win the trick and declarer can scamper for cover with six clubs, two hearts and one diamond.

West observed that his opponent had made no attempt to play clubs, so it was reasonable to assume that that suit was solid and South held the ace. It was obvious that he also had both the ace and king of hearts inasmuch as the highest card East could contribute to the first trick was the jack.

If West permitted his opponent to score a diamond, it would represent the ninth trick, so he put up the ace. Since declarer still had a heart stopper, West switched to a spade in the hope that his partner held the king.

In making the shift, it was necessary to provide for the possibility that South had a semi-stopper in spades. West, therefore, played the ace first, observing East's encouraging signal of the eight, and then continued with the deuce. East covered dummy's ten with the king and the return thru South's jack, enabled West to score the setting trick by cashing the queen and nine.

Observe that, if West shifts to a small spade immediately without first cashing an honor, dummy's ten will force him to win the second round with the queen and South retains a stopper, since East can not get in again to lead thru.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1967

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Make the most of any good ideas you may have and, if need be, enlist the help of others in putting them across. Favorable planetary influences promise chances for advancement, unexpected benefits.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Even if hours are short and there is much to be accomplished, make time for efficient planning. A good day for revitalizing all interests.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Present trends suggest that you take a clearer look at your aims and methods of attaining them. Study new offerings carefully. Be objective in judgments.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—A splendid day for making the most of your talents and your innate perceptiveness, but do not scatter energies. Keep your eyes on the main goal, and you can make important strides toward achieving it.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Clever management could be a prime factor in your success now. One victory can start a chain of them going. An excellent period for capitalizing on the Leoite's fine gift of salesmanship—of himself and his wares.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Don't reject suggestions without giving them thorough consideration. You may overlook an idea which COULD be developed profitably, even though it does not impress you at first.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—In whatever you do or say, emphasize your most charming manner, which can outwit opposition, help prevent friction. News of interest indicated.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—With steady nerves and calm thinking, you will automatically follow the sure path—if you have carefully outlined procedure.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—You have the inside track in a number of ways—if you will just recognize opportunities when available and handle them in your usual clever and judicious manner.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Don't worry about past setbacks. Think about new ways to get ahead—and there are many! Apathy will get you nowhere, but optimism will!

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—A good period for revitalizing all projects, for capitalizing on unusual ideas and re-wamping outdated methods. Many hidden benefits awaiting you.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Mixed influences. You may have to plan strategies well if you are to keep things on an even keel. But this you can do! Forward—with confidence!

YOU BORN TODAY are keen-minded, extremely able in emergencies; have strong will power and enormous reserve energy. You have a magnetic personality, great versatility and, perhaps, a flair for mechanics. You Pisceans can be numbered among the world's best writers, scientists, politicians and diplomats. You could also excel as mathematicians, musicians and teachers; may have an unusual interest in the occult. Birthdate of: George Washington, 1st Pres., U.S.A.; James Russell Lowell, writer, diplomat.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

OXYGEN DEBT IN SMOKERS

As a high school athlete, I was told that smoking "shortens the breath." This belief has persisted but until recently, there was no scientific proof supporting the theory. A group of physicians from Indiana University Medical Center found that with each puff smokers inhale enough carbon monoxide (CO) to lessen the ability of the blood cells to carry their full quota of oxygen.

Considerable research has been conducted in this field including pulmonary tests on young male cigarette smokers and nonsmokers. The difference between the two groups is that in the smoker, carbon monoxide replaces some of the oxygen in the blood.

Oxygen is essential when energy is generated during exertion. The amount of this oxygen debt is not enough to cause symptoms among smokers under ordinary circumstances but the deficit might have an effect when that little extra effort is expended.

Oxygen is carried in the hemoglobin part of the red corpuscles. Blood prefers carbon monoxide to oxygen (300 to one) explaining why the gas gets into the system so readily.

Cigarette smoke contains 4 per cent CO but is diluted with air when inhaled so that only 0.04 per cent reaches the air sacs. This is enough to produce a 3 to 10 per cent CO level in blood. It is the same level that develops in many persons driving along a busy freeway from car exhaust.

The Indiana researchers clinched their experiments by doing identical tests on 10 nonsmokers after they inhaled the same amount of CO as is found in cigarettes. The subjects had the same oxygen debt following exercise as did smokers. The present study demonstrated that CO accounted for the less efficient exercise and poorer pulmonary function performance of smokers compared to nonsmokers.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies.

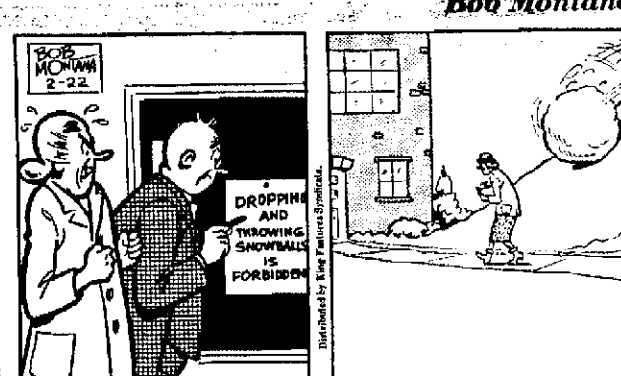

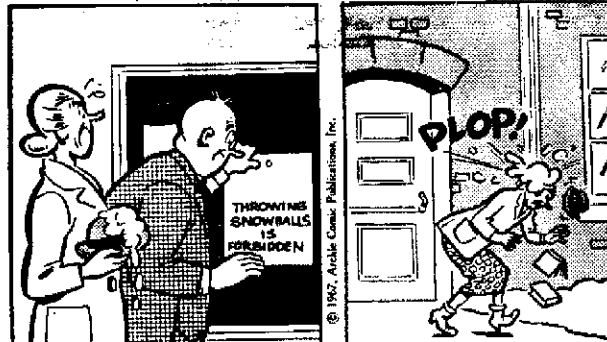

TOMORROW: Anti-Strep Vaccine.

Truck Causes Tieup Route 322

A Warren man was involved in a traffic tie-up on Route 322 south of Clearfield Monday afternoon.

A tractor-trailer rig operated by Edward Medovich, of Warren, jack-knifed when the driver applied his brakes when a vehicle in front of him slowed down.

No injuries were reported and damage to the rig was estimated at $1,000.

Traffic in both lanes was backed up for about an hour and a half until State Highway Dept. crews began re-routing cars on a series of small legislative routes.

No other vehicles were involved in the mishap.

Frank Nelson Honored, Other Ludlow News

Mrs. Frank Nelson entertained at a family supper, honoring her husband on his 79th birthday, Feb. 12th. Home for the celebration were their daughter, Mrs. Norman Larson, of Amarillo, Texas, Mrs. Paul Bloomquist and daughter Bonnie of Kane, and son, Robert Bloomquist, from Edinboro State College; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nelson, daughter Elden and Eric Nelson of Sheffield; Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Nelson and children Cindy and Scott of Ludlow; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Youngberg and daughter Beverly of Jamestown, N. Y.

Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Johnson and Miss Margaret Alexander in Warren have been Mr. and Mrs. John G. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. William Hanson and the Misses Victoria and Mabel Peterson.

The Ludlow Sewing Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Walter Swanson in her home Tuesday, Feb. 7, with Miss Norma Bergquist as a guest. On Monday the Sewing Club attended the Style Show and card party at St. Paul's Center in Saybrook. Among the prize winners were Mrs. Ernest Anderson and Mrs. Walter Swanson of Ludlow.

Among Ludlow folks who left for a Florida vacation last week were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Swanson and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Eckstrom.

Mrs. Anna Bergquist observed her 82nd birthday Thursday evening at her home (her birthday was on St. Valentine's Day), with some of her friends coming for a social evening and delicious refreshments.

The American Legion Auxiliary meeting was held at the Legion Hall Tuesday evening. The president, Mrs. Agnes Ross, conducted the opening exercises and led the "Alliance to the Flag" and the preamble.

The regular routine of business was conducted and reports were heard which were followed by a program given by Miss Edith Larson who spent six months of last summer in Sweden and Iceland. She showed some interesting colored slides taken at the homes of relatives and friends and where she traveled during that time. Her talk was very much appreciated and enjoyed by all. Mrs. Eva Jones and Mrs. Nina Peterson served refreshments from a very attractively set table.

Mrs. Alma Carlson was taken to her home on Saturday after being dismissed from Kane Community Hospital after several weeks there. She has been taken care of at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Anderson, for the past three weeks. Her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Elders of Pittsburgh, arrived on Saturday and Mrs. Elders will stay and care for her mother for a time.

School Fire Set

School officials in Corry on Saturday were puzzled over an incident which could have led to serious and even disastrous consequences in the Corry Area High School on Thursday. What was apparently a deliberately set fire was found on the floor in the boys' rest room in the Senior High wing by a teacher when he smelled smoke. High School Principal Leroy Peck said the fire was quickly put out and there was no major damage.

GIRL CONFESSES BANK HOLD-UP TO PSYCHIATRIST

NEW YORK. — Park Avenue's richest psychiatrist, Dr. Sigmund Freud, said today that one of his prettier and wealthier patients, he would not disclose her name, confessed to last week's daring Fifth Avenue bank robbery. "She showed me the money," he said, "and then she ran out of my office. I would have stopped her, but her hour was up."

U.S. to Step Up War Against Viet Cong with More Shrike Missiles

By WILLIAM BEECHER
(c) N. Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — The United States plans to step up the war against North Vietnamese surface-to-air missiles, Pentagon sources say.
They say that additional numbers of Shrike anti-radar missiles will be shipped to South Vietnam and more aircraft will be equipped to carry them.

The Shrikes will be employed in a concerted attempt to try to neutralize what some military specialists call one of the lightest air-defense nets ever installed anywhere.
Government analysts say there are now 120 to 150 surface-to-air missiles (SAM) launchers in North Vietnam, about 6,500 antiaircraft guns, approximately 1,200 of which employ radar-directed fire, and uncounted numbers of small caliber machine-guns that are also used in air defense.

Soviet-made SAM's were first introduced in Vietnam in July, 1965, several months after the U.S. started regular bombings of military targets in North Vietnam. Since then about 1,500 SAM's have been fired at U.S. planes but are officially credited with destroying only 81 planes.

The possibility of SAM launches, however, has forced American plans to approach their targets at much lower altitudes, bringing them within range of the murderous fire of antiaircraft defenses. In all, 471 American aircraft have been brought down by North Vietnamese gunners, defense sources say.

The Shrike, a missile developed by the Navy is designed to ride the enemy's own radar beam back to the radar site. It is the U.S.'s primary counter-weapon to the SAM.
Rushed to Vietnam in the fall of 1965, the Shrike was first reported to be a disappointment. Published reports from the field suggested that the enemy often confused the Shrike's homing system by simply turning their tracking radar off and on.

But improvements have been made in the Shrike's guidance system, its rocket engine and its warheads, sources say, and Navy and Air Force pilots have become more adept at operating the new system.
Although officials do not have reliable statistics to back up their claim, they now contend that the Shrike is knocking out significant numbers of SAM radar control antennas. And the very fact that the North Vietnamese are forced to turn their radar on and off decreases the effectiveness of their air defense, officials contend.

In a typical bombing mission against North Vietnam, some planes will carry Shrikes that can be used to try to silence the radars controlling SAM's and antiaircraft guns.

There are estimated to be 20 to 25 radar units controlling the 120-150 SAM launchers and more than 200 radar complexes controlling about 1,200 antiaircraft guns.

SCOUT DINNER AT RUSSELL

Cub Scout Pack 14 of Russell entertained a throng of 225 at the Blue and Gold dinner which was held Thursday evening. The event took place at Russell Elementary School.

Senate O.K. Blue and Gold Erie Judge Dinner of Cub Is Delayed Scout Pack 14

ERIE — The appointment of Lindley R. McClelland as an Erie County Court judge failed to be confirmed by the State Senate Monday as had been expected, reportedly as a temporary measure to show displeasure with an address made last week by McClelland critical of the U.S. Supreme Court's recent criminal law rulings.

A ceremony for swearing in McClelland which had been set for Wednesday was indefinitely postponed.

Sen. William G. Sessler of Erie, who had been on record as approving the appointment of McClelland, currently district attorney, said he was not in Harrisburg for the one-day session, adding "I was surprised the appointment did not come up, I expected it."

Sen. Sessler said perhaps the delay was because the Senate was pressed for time. From other sources it was reported that McClelland's confirmation was delayed to show displeasure by some legislators with remarks made by McClelland in a speech last Wednesday before the Erie Exchange Club criticizing recent decisions by the Supreme Court for codding criminals.

Alderman in Fight

Erie advices report Alderman Michael Kinecki, 710 East 11th st., in fair condition in St. Vincent hospital at Erie with injuries suffered in a reported fist fight early Monday morning in front of the Polish Foresters Club, 1305 Parade st. Police said the fracas involved the alderman and former police Det. Sgt. Chester Wiskowski. No charges had been filed late Monday.

Rev. Arthur Hummel gave the invocation and John Biekarek was master of ceremonies.

Special guests were Rev. Hummel, pastor of the Methodist church, John Kloos from the Scout office and wife, Merle Sterling and Claude Perrigo, Institutional representatives of the Russell VFD, and their wives, Herman Stanton, Boy Scout Master of Troop 14, and wife.

Herbert Swanson, Cub Scout Master, presented the following awards: Dean Sumner, Wolf badge and gold and silver arrow; Larry Himes, Wolf badge and gold arrow; Lennie Gray, Jerry Pangborn and Lynn Sanden, Wolf badges, Arthur Stewart, Dudley Cable, silver arrows; Rodney Motz, two silver arrows; Scott Lindell, two year service stars; Robert Safford, service star and gold arrow; Den Mother Mrs. Donald Andersen, two year service star, and Mrs. Paul Motz a seven year service star. Remarks were made by several visitors and Mr. Stanton welcomed ten Webelos, who will shortly be eligible to become Boy Scouts.

On Saturday, Cub Master Swanson, Richard Schmitt, committee man, Den Chief Charles Barrett with six Cub Scouts, as a goodwill gesture to the VFD, their sponsors, cleaned the first floor of the fire hall. The VFD and Auxiliary are serving a swiss steak supper, Saturday, Feb. 25 from 5:30 to 8:30 p. m.

STUDENT COUNCIL EXPLAINED

Members of the Lions Club enjoyed talks by two representatives of the Warren Area High School Student Council at yesterday's meeting. The activities of the Council, how it is set up and its various functions were explained. Left to right above, Lion President, Ange D'Amico; student council representatives, Craig Scalise and Mary Jane Miller, and acting program chairman, Lew Gibson.

Mrs. Joan Boorady On Faculty of JCC

The appointment of Mrs. Joan P. Boorady as an instructor of English at Jamestown Community College has been announced by Dr. Albert W. Baisler, College President.

Mrs. Boorady was graduated magna cum laude from the University of Buffalo. She also earned her M.A. Degree in English at UB and is a doctoral candidate there. She also did some undergraduate work at Cornell University.

While at the University of Buffalo she served as a Teaching Fellow and during the summer session as a graduate research assistant.

Interview Here with Dr. Philip Schwartz In Series Prepared for German Television

By FRANKLIN R. HOFF

The Warren Times-Mirror and Observer has the privilege of being the first newspaper in the entire United States to break an unusual international news story.

A six-man television production team from Radio Free Berlin, in this country making a series of documentary television programs, visited Warren to photograph a TV interview with Dr. Philip Schwartz, director of Research, Warren State Hospital, a key personality of their series to be telecast throughout Germany.

Their expedition has taken them to Turkey, France, England and the United States.

The team touring the United States includes: Director Paul Mautner, who also writes scripts; Writer Jurgen Boettcher; Assistant Director Henric Wurmeling, Sound Engineer Wolfgang Haesen, Director of Photography Gunter Hahn, Assistant Camera Director Manfred Straßl.

Surprisingly, so far during their tour in the United States, in none of the cities they have visited has any newspaper reported their project. Because arrangements were all made from Germany, this may account for their activities being unheralded since their arrival. This gives the Warren Times-Mirror the rare honor of being first to carry the story.

The six men travel in a rented car and station wagon loaded with 800 pounds of gear, including three cameras, and sound on tape equipment. There are 762 different pieces of equipment to keep track of.

All six speak impeccable English. Gunter Hahn, when interviewed, disclosed he has been in the United States before. In fact, he was in Albuquerque, N.M., when President Kennedy was assassinated. He flew immediately to Dallas. An interview with Lee Oswald was scheduled, for German radio. He saw Oswald alive. However, Ruby's shooting of Oswald cancelled this scoop.

As explained by the team's director of photography, Gunter Hahn, and his colleagues, they are interviewing scientists, scholars, artists, architects, and other creative people who were refugees from Hitler's Germany. The cream of German culture, these men have, in the intervening three decades and more, enriched the culture and contributed immeasurably to achievements in the arts and sciences of their adopted countries.

LOCAL SCIENTIST ON GERMAN TELEVISION

LOCAL SCIENTIST ON GERMAN TELEVISION—Dr. Philip Schwartz, director of research at Warren State Hospital, is photographed and interviewed by a television team from Germany, for a documentary series. (Photo by Hoff)

"The purpose of these television documentaries," Hahn observes, "is to help the people of Germany understand what this great drain of talent meant to Germany, and try particularly to inform the younger people, so they can see what happened, and its results, so it may never occur again at some future time."

Before undertaking their tour, there was considerable correspondence with Dr. Philip Schwartz, in Warren. This was because in 1933 he established in Zurich, Switzerland, an Emergency Association of German Scientists in Exile, to assist refugees like himself to relocate to other countries.

In addition to Dr. Schwartz, the television team are interviewing a number of others. They are traveling to Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., to visit Prof. Albrecht Hans Bethe, of the Institute of Nuclear Studies, at Princeton University, the famed German language professor, Dr. Erich Von Kahler. Scholars at Harvard University were interviewed. At Yale University in New Haven, Conn., they visited Professor Josef Albers, world-famed artist, member of the Bauhaus School in Germany who influenced the reform of architecture.

At Chicago they photographed Mies Van Der Rohe, famous architect of the Gropius school. They will also go to Hollywood and San Francisco before returning to Germany March 2. In Hollywood they will, among others, interview the famous directors Fritz Lang and Billy Wilder — both refugees from Germany.

To make the documentaries compact, they avoid the time-wasting question-and-answer format. Instead they photograph scientists and scholars at their work, and have them describe their work and experiences themselves. Frau Dr. Dagmar Fambach, of the Department of Cultural TV, developed the program and edits the documentary series. First of the series will be telecast throughout Germany on April 23, the remaining four following every two weeks.

The group from Germany explained that Dr. Schwartz was of vital assistance in their project, because of his role among refugee scholars and scientists.

Dr. Philip Schwartz was already recognized as a leading scientist and teacher in the universities of Germany, when, in 1933, then on the staff of the Medical School of the University of Frankfurt am Main, one March morning of that fateful year, colleagues warned him to leave the country. Dr. Schwartz, his wife and their small son and baby daughter fled to Zurich, Switzerland. They found shelter there with his wife's parents. Zurich was alive with the cream of leaders from every institution of higher learning in Germany. It was Schwartz' nature to do something about the tragic situation during ensuing days and weeks an avalanche of inquiries and registrations came, and thus Emergency Association of German Scientists in Exile, which he founded, with help of volunteers and employees, worked fourteen hours a day to compile almost complete lists of actual and prospective victims of German race delusion in the field of science. A branch was later set up in England and in the United States.

Suddenly, and unexpectedly, Dr. Schwartz was summoned to Turkey, where the great Atatürk and his parliament had authorized establishment of two complete new universities including two modern medical schools as a keystone of reform and modernization of this ancient nation.

Schwartz, with his group of scholars and research men, achieved an extraordinary feat. He set up and staffed twenty new universities, including a medical school, with first-class scientists, in Istanbul and Ankara. New buildings were constructed, and old ones rebuilt.

On the heels of this accomplishment, in 1934 Dr. Schwartz was commissioned by the Turkish government to recommend what might be termed a "brain trust" to administer the Turkish "New Deal" — experts for modernization of Turkey's economy and social structure. Goals were developed of mineral resources, agriculture, fisheries, forestry, creation of new industries, transportation, and other national tasks. Again Schwartz recruited in each field top experts who had lost their positions in Germany. For all this reform work in Turkey, Dr. Schwartz himself enlisted more than 150 first-class scientists and experts.

This was the beginning of a modern renaissance in the entire Near East. Atatürk's accomplishments and reforms were immediately imitated by the Persian Shah and later in Egypt.

After 20 years in Turkey, Schwartz came to America. Here he has continued his researches, chiefly in brain lesions of the new-born, tuberculosis, pulmonary cancer, and above all his investigations of the causes and prevention of old age.

The television team photographed Dr. Schwartz in his laboratories, and the new 9-million-dollar geriatrics facility which will provide more scope to his research program. On the sound track, Schwartz recounted the story of the Emergency Association of German Scientists in Exile, which he founded. They also photographed the original contract he entered into with the Turkish government.

Commenting on the television documentary series, Dr. Schwartz believes this enterprise initiated by the Germans as characteristic of the "New Germany" and its thinking.

Erie Man Hurt In Crash South Of Riceville

An Erie man was injured Monday morning in a three-vehicle accident two miles south of Riceville, according to State Police of the Corry substation.

The mishap occurred at 10:40 a.m. on Route 8 when a truck driven by Jack Randall, 35, of Erie, attempted to pass a south-bound car driven by Guy Mancini, also of Erie.

Police said another truck, traveling north on Route 8, jackknifed when its operator, Leroy Reiff, 29, RD 1, East Earl, applied its brakes in an effort to avoid hitting the Randall vehicle. The Reiff truck struck the Randall truck and the Mancini car collided with the Reiff vehicle.

Mancini was taken to St. Vincent Hospital suffering from chest injuries.

Police estimated total damage at $1,300.

SearsRoebuckPlans Expansion in East

(c) N.Y. Times News Service NEW YORK — Sears, Roebuck and Co., the world's largest retail organization, plans a major expansion in the East. Gordon M. Metcalf, the new Sears chairman, detailed these plans in one of his infrequent visits to New York last week. He said Sears would open between 13 and 15 new stores in the East this year.

Big Cherry Tree Cut in Area Recalls Visit by Washington

This one escaped George and his hatchet when he visited this area in 1753.

Many stories have been written about Washington and the cherry tree.

But obviously, as Alex Badonoch of Marienville writes, "Washington was not in an ax-wielding mood when he passed up this cherry tree during the mid-eighteenth century visit to what is now Northwestern Pennsylvania.

"While George was known to have slept everywhere there was a cherry bed and feather mattress, he was especially fond of sitting in and eating from furniture made from the same species," Badonoch points out, continuing as follows:

"Still on this occasion, as history relates, he was instructed to meet with the French forces near Fort LeBoeuf, Erie County, and he had the distasteful task of telling the French commander to high-tail back into Canada. The conflict that followed for several years seemingly did not perturb the tree from which this log came and as a matter of report, this tree flourished under three flags — French, British and American.

"This patriarch of the cherry tree family measured 57" large diameter and had a circumference of about 15 feet. This log had a small end average diameter of 48", was twelve feet long and contained 1450 feet. The entire tree contained over 3,000 feet.

"Sheffield lumberman Jerry Spetz and Kane veneer buyer Jee Rolick meditate on the past history and the future of this bumper log. This log has been shipped to Helms Veneer Corporation at Rocky Mountain, Va., where it will be processed into exquisite veneers or specialty paneling which will eventually grace the residences and offices of appreciative connoisseurs who are aware of the mellow beauty and elegance of this aristocrat of Penn's woods.

"In the late seventeenth century a love match was formed between this species and colonial cabinetmakers and nothing has interfered with the affection to this day. Admiration for this species spread to Europe and cherry wood was reserved for the creation of more elegant English and French designs.

Salty Sentences

Judge Edward H. Carney in Erie County Court meted out salty sentences to three defendants found guilty in the armed robbery of the Capri Motel there. Robert L. First, 26, of 818 Brown Ave., was sentenced to five to ten years in Western Penitentiary, where George Veronis, 21, of the same address, received a four-to-ten year sentence and James Squan, 19, 9 Hausman Court, was sentenced from two and one-half to five years.

GEORGE MISSED THIS BIG ONE

Jerry Spetz, of Sheffield, and Joe Rolick, of Kane, are pictured above as Spetz holds a four-foot log rule on the small end of the cherry log, illustrating the large dimensions of the big tree recently cut in the local area.

FFA—A Worthy Organization

That most worthy organization, the Future Farmers of America, is receiving well-deserved recognition during this week. Writers, commentators, officials and others in all walks of life, are paying tribute to one of the most important groups of young people in the country—the young people who in the years to come will bear the heavy responsibility of providing the food and fiber so sorely needed by a world confronted with the prospect of famine, unless unprecedented breakthroughs are achieved in food production.

Each year the significance of Future Farmers of America Week grows. The message that the young farmers of tomorrow endeavor to impart to the nation during their "Week" is simple. They seek to, "Inform (the) public of (the) importance of agriculture to America, (the) value of good citizenship development, and (the) role of Future Farmers of America in this effort."

There was a time when the nation was predominantly agricultural. Raising food to eat absorbed the efforts of a majority of the people. Gradually, as agricultural technology improved, fewer and fewer people were required on the land to produce food. One farmer now feeds scores of other people—people who have moved to the cities where they produce all the other necessities and luxuries of our age except food.

There is only so much land; thus as populations increase, those who are engaged in agriculture will bear an increasingly heavy responsibility to their fellow men. It is indeed a privilege to pay homage to the FFA.

Voted Against Checkrein on CIA

WASHINGTON — On Jan. 24, 1966, the U. S. Senate in the second closed-door session since World War II voted 61 to 28 to permit other Senators except the Armed Services Committee to ride herd on the secret activities of the Central Intelligence Agency.

If that vote had been different, the country might not have been so surprised by recent disclosures that some $3 million of the taxpayers' money had been spent by CIA to subsidize various student organizations represented to the public as spontaneous youth movements organized in the spirit of American free enterprise. Investigation by other Senators besides the pro-military Armed Services Committee would have disclosed this subsidy.

During the secret debate, Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., contended that the CIA played a more influential role in foreign policy than the State Department; therefore his Senate Foreign Relations Committee members should be informed of the CIA's activities.

Standing near Fulbright and striking his right fist into his left palm with a loud crack, Sen. Richard Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, blasted the Foreign Relations Committee as "self-serving, self-seeking."

Russell demanded that the resolution to permit the Foreign Relations Committee to participate in supervision of CIA be referred to his committee, where of course it was certain to be killed.

Vice President Humphrey, usually a liberal, ruled against his liberal colleagues. He won the day for Russell and his conservatives.

Ten years before, the Senate had also voted, 59 to 27, to defeat a proposal by Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., now Senate Leader, to create a joint Congressional committee to oversee the CIA. The then-Senate Leader from Texas, now President of the United States, voted against this checkrein on Central Intelligence.

Since other members of the Senate and the public have been denied access to the operations of Central Intelligence, this column will undertake to report on some of them — without disclosing the more delicate operations which might involve national security.

SYLVIA PORTER

What Are "Freedom Shares?"

Yesterday, at a 33-city closed circuit telecast, the U.S. Treasury kicked off its 1967 "Share in Freedom" savings bond campaign—and to add zest to this year's razzle-dazzle campaign, it disclosed the terms of the new additional savings note it will offer to you, the systematic buyer of "E" bonds.

The note, to be called a Freedom Share, is scheduled to go on sale May 1. Thus, this Q. & A. to clarify its pros and cons.

Q. What is this Freedom Share?

A. It is a U.S. Treasury obligation maturing in 4½ years which you cannot redeem for one year after purchase and which if held to maturity will give you the equivalent of 4.74 per cent interest a year. It will be sold at a discount price—just as E bonds are sold—and it will accumulate interest each year to due date.

Q. Who can buy it?

A. Only those of you who are buying E bonds regularly under a payroll savings or bond-a-month plan or those of you who now sign up for either. This means you must be buying E bonds yielding 4.15 per cent to maturity in seven years to be eligible to buy Freedom Shares yielding you 4.74 per cent to maturity in 4½ years. Right now, about 9,000,000 of us are in the plans and the Treasury hopes to add 2,250,000 more to the rolls this year.

Q. What will be the note's prices and denominations?

A. You will pay $20.25 for a note bringing back $25 in 4½ years; $40.50 for a note maturing at $50; $60.75 for a note returning $75; and $81 for a $100 denomination note.

Q. Any limits on the amount of notes I can buy?

A. Your deductions for the notes under either a payroll savings or bond-a-month plan cannot exceed $81 a month. Your purchases in any one calendar year are limited to $1,350 face amount.

Q. Why should I buy these when I can get more than their combined top interest in many savings accounts?

A. Do NOT buy them if you are saving for only a short period. The E bond pays you only 3.02 per cent if held a year; the note is not redeemable for a year and then if cashed in would return you 4.01 per cent. Do BUY them if you are planning long-term savings. The 4.15 and 4.74 per cent returns are historically attractive and most significant, the rates are GUARANTEED for the lives of your securities. Other interest rates on savings are now heading down.

Another key point is that you can postpone paying Federal income tax on the interest accumulated until you actually redeem your E bonds and notes. Both are exempt from state and local taxes, too. This is a major plus if you are planning to redeem your bonds and notes at regular intervals when you retire and presumably move into a lower tax bracket.

A third vital point is that you are disciplined into systematic saving when you are under an automatic payroll deduction plan.

The Treasury's purpose in offering those notes is to pull in some of your new, extra savings so it can finance the war-swollen deficit in a non-inflationary way. At these terms, though, you're hardly making a "sacrifice" by responding.

MASON DENISON

The 'Beginner' Bloc

Pennsylvania News Service
HARRISBURG — For the first time in many a legislative moon disgruntled runblings over Pennsylvania's slow and oft-times painfully deliberative legislative process are being heard this year—from all people—lawmakers themselves.

Of course not all the 253 members of the House and Senate are squawking — for the most part the under-the-table grumblings are being heard from the healthy brood of first and second term legislators.

However, lump the first and second term legislators into one group—and you have a surprising number of the 253!

In the 203-member House of Representatives for example, 102 are in this group of first termers and those just starting their second term. (In the House each term runs only two years.)

In the 50-member Senate where terms run for four years and where only half the seats are up for filling every two years, 15 senators this year are starting their first term. In other words, in the case of the Senate roughly one-third of the members of the upper chamber elected this fall are first-termers.

Biggest rumble though is found in the House membership where 61 of the 102 first and second termers this year began their first term, a healthy swatch by almost any standard.

This means that slightly more than half of the entire House membership comprises freshmen and second-term lawmakers, which no matter how you look at it is a good size chunk of the entire 203-seat House of Representatives.

It is the size of this "beginner" bloc that has made some of the legislative veterans sit up and take notice, cognizant of the inescapable fact that the bloc could very well upset the best laid plans of mice and men.

What are the newcomers to Pennsylvania's legislative halls disgruntled about?

In the first place a goodly portion of these youngbloods are just that—young bloods, young in age and of the "new breed" era.

They want little part of the conventional fiddle-faddle that has dictated legislative decorum (if it can be properly called that) over the years.

They're not concerned with bowing and scraping (literally, of course) to their service seniors on either legislative or non-legislative matters.

In a nutshell, they want nothing to do with the freshman dink stuff, waiting around until they're old men before daring to take the microphone on the floor to vent their feelings.

For the most part they want answers and action—now.

They're irked with coming to Harrisburg one or two days a week and doing little or nothing.

Curiously, others have told the same way in the past but for the most part they've been too small in number to do anything about it—other than holler in a barrel.

This year with a swatch of one and two-termers they have the numbers and their vocal outbursts are beginning to be heard. Legislative patriarchs of yesterday, accustomed to the old hierarchy system, are beginning to quiver.

The "new breed" could very well blister their hides if they ever decided to—a possibility that has given many an old pro pause to fret, and think twice.

Had Something Called Aplomb

Radio is music. It is also antiseptic news executed in neutral diction. Thus, radio is now bigger and richer than ever. To a housewife dusting, it's a diversion. To a salesman in a car, it's someone to talk to him. To a kid, it's an earlap.

Once, radio was funny. Almost hilarious. Long ago, the Columbia University football games were broadcast by Mark Hellinger and Perry Charles.

Charles was a lemon-head with a giggle. He weighed the same as a handful of feathers in a hurricane. Hellinger was a Broadway columnist with slick hair, a dark blue shirt and a white tie.

Columbia University, under Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, was as prim as a spinster in a disorderly house. The football team played at Baker Field, and without degrading itself, played only members of selected colleges.

The team's water boy was a kid named Ted Husing. Dislike, of course—the water, not Husing. Somehow, the university permitted itself to engage Hellinger and Charles to broadcast the home games for a radio station with the call letters WHN. This was a contretemps on the order of slapping Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth on the hip and murmuring: "England may be low on gold, but you sure got a lot of lead."

Perry Charles understood the game of football, but he couldn't seem to comprehend who had the ball or, for that matter, which team. Hellinger, who spoke in a low-key snarl intended to be sexy, couldn't detect a Statue of Liberty play from a guy with a watermelon hailing a taxi. Still, they got a contract to broadcast the games. In the press box, on the right, was a lucid hysteric named Graham McNamee, who lifted more people out of their seats than "The Star-Spangled Banner."

He had a table full of microphones, representing radio stations all over the country. On Hellinger's left was another network broadcaster, a cautious codger named Ford Frick. He was a sportswriter who loved baseball.

One Saturday—and this is typical of all the others—Columbia was playing Virginia Military Institute. Game time was 2 p.m., so Hellinger and Charles arrived at 1:30 laden with all the items one needs for a football game—two fifths of brandy, paper cups, lovely hangers and heads full of nothing.

They squeezed through the members of the press and got to their table with its solitary microphone. They drank a little and discussed the sordid listeners who wrote to WHN saying that the columnist and the commentator were the world's funniest broadcasters. Sometimes, when Columbia made a first down, all Mark and Perry did was roar with delight and pour another drink.

"Sweetheart," said Perry, "our sneaky friend McNamee has discovered a cute way of telling one player from another. He has drawn up a big sheet of paper with all the line and backfield positions of VMI on one side, and all the Columbia guys on the other. When a substitution is made, he erases and puts the new name in."

Hellinger shook his head sadly. "I never trust a guy who talks through his nose," he said. Then he tilted a drink. "So let's try it." They got a big sheet of wrapping paper, placed all the VMI names on the left, and all the Columbia kids on the right. This called for two more paper cups.

It began to get warm out there. They were gabbling and cursing each other into a live mike. Then the team captains tossed a coin and Columbia elected to defend the goal on the left. "We got it backwards," Hellinger said. Perry held his head. "What are we gonna do?"

Somehow, it did not occur to them to turn the paper around. Mark began to erase all the names, and switch them to opposite sides of the paper. They acquired their listeners with this problem and ten minutes of the first quarter went by with nothing but muttered imprecations and roars from the crowd.

When it was straightened out, the first quarter was over. The teams changed sides, and Perry said: "Aw, the hell with it!" He had to adjourn to the men's room. Mark said he wasn't going to be left alone. He and the brandy would join Mr. Charles. "How about the broadcast?" Hellinger said.

"A cinch," said Mr. Charles, and took the microphone from the table and placed it on Graham McNamee's desk. WHN listeners were astonished to find that they were now listening to NBC's star. Switchboards in both places began to light up.

Later, when McNamee was asked about it, he said: "I thought we just added another network." In ten minutes, Mark and Charles were back. Not knowing the score, or who was playing, they made up a great story about two mythical teams, Chillicothe and Miners Reserve, in a titanic struggle. They had something sports announcers no longer have. It's called aplomb, a bathroom fixture. . .

RUSSELL BAKER

How George Broke the Bad News

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Scrambled history.

It was nearly midnight when George returned to Mount Vernon. He stabled his horse and quietly entered the house, hoping that Martha would be asleep. She was waiting for him in the parlor, her eyes still swollen from the tears she had shed.

"Oh George!" she cried, rushing to embrace him. "I saw it all on television."

"I'm sorry, Martha. I'm really sorry. I know how much you wanted to be the First Lady, but by the time the balloting started on the convention floor I didn't have enough votes left to even swing a deal for the vice presidency. Randolph says it was my false teeth that ruined me. Apparently, on TV these teeth made me look like I've just bitten into a lemon, and that's what started all those jokes about, 'would you buy a used horse from this man?'"

"I couldn't stand it, George, when they laughed at you."

"It was my own fault, Martha. Jefferson thought it would get me a little publicity if I held a press conference and threw a dollar across the river. I should have known it would produce those headlines saying, 'General Throws Money to Winds.'"

"And that Ben Franklin! He didn't even try to hold the Pennsylvania delegation for you, George."

"Don't be unfair, Martha. Ben did his best in the caucus. After it was over he came to me with tears in his eyes. 'George,' he said, 'I know and you know that you're the best qualified man for the presidency in the country today, but running in Pennsylvania you couldn't even beat Franklin Pierce.'"

"It's the civil-rights crowd," said Martha. "They'd never forgive you for being a slaveowner."

"It was everything, Martha. The civil-rights people were against me as a slaveholder. Labor wouldn't take me because I'm a capitalist. The women were against me because I cuss and drink whisky. The peace crowd thought me because I was a military man, and the intellectuals were against me because of my southern accent. Even the big-city bosses lost interest in me."

"But why, George, why?"

"It was that old cherry tree story that Time dug up in its cover story on me. One of the bosses from Boston told me, 'George, the country won't soon forget what you did at Valley Forge, but these are tricky times and most of us feel that a president who never tells a lie is a luxury the country just can't afford right now.'"

"Disgusting!"

"The bosses weren't the only people who felt like that. Art Sylvester—remember him? He used to be assistant secretary of colonial information. Art tried to talk me out of letting them put my name in nomination."

"General," he said, 'sometimes a President has to cut down a cherry tree and tell the press somebody else did it.'"

"But even the south refused to back you, George. Your own people turned against you. I can't understand that."

"That was my own fool fault, Martha. When my horse pulled into Philadelphia, I found a stable full of reporters waiting for me. One of them asked what advice I would give to the country at the end of my presidency. If I were elected, and without thinking I said I'd urge it to avoid entangling alliances. That immediately soured Florida, Alabama and Georgia."

"I can't see why."

"Don't you see, Martha? If we don't get entangled in alliances, it means no defense contracts. No gunpowder plants, no shipyards, no big army camps, no musket-assembly centers, no big government-financed cannon industry. Without all these things, the south will have nothing to do but go ahead growing cotton with slave labor."

"As Mendel Rivers told me, General, you raked old Cornwallis up real good at Yorktown, but your kind of thinking about foreign entanglements could get us southerners caught on the weak side of a pretty nasty civil war in another 50 or 60 years."

"Oh George, I could cry."

"There, there, Martha. The only thing I feel bad about is the new capital they're going to build. I'd sort of hoped it would be put right here on the Potomac and named Washington. Now, I guess, they'll put it out there on the Pacific Ocean and call it Reaganton."

Winter Bean Salad Novelty

DIFFERENT KIND OF SALAD

Novel, new salad... Winter Bean Salad... breaks the boredom of serving the same old salad meal after meal. These creamy, jelled salads are hearty with kidney beans, mayonnaise and canned tomato sauce with mushrooms.

Flavorful And Robust Casserole

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
FAMILIES WHO enjoy robust and flavorful casseroles are sure to welcome Tamale Pie. This pie is an interesting combination of ground beef, whole-kernel corn, tomatoes, cornmeal and ripe olives. Seasonings go in, of course, and grated cheese makes the topping.

We've tried lots of Tamale Pies in our day—but this one is a little different. Usually the cornmeal is cooked separately and used as a base. But not here. Instead the cornmeal is cooked along with the other ingredients before it is turned into the casserole. This makes an interesting texture change—it also makes one less pot to wash!

TAMALE PIE WITH RIPE OLIVES.....
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 pound ground lean beef
1 small onion, finely chopped or 1/4 cup instant minced onion
1 can (1-pound 1-ounce) whole kernel corn
1 can (1-pound) stewed tomatoes
1/2 cup enriched yellow cornmeal
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup canned drained pitted ripe olives
Grated cheddar cheese

In a 10-inch skillet, heat the oil, add beef and over moderate heat, crumbling fine with the flat tines of a fork, cook meat until it loses its red color. Add onion, undrained corn and the undrained stewed tomatoes. Slowly stir in the cornmeal, then salt, chili powder and Worcestershire sauce. Over low heat, cook and stir for 10 minutes. Stir in ripe olives. Turn into a 1 1/2-quart round ovenproof glass casserole (7 1/2 by 2 1/2 inches); sprinkle with cheese. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven until bubbly hot and well browned—about 45 minutes. Makes 6 servings. If you like you may reserve 6 ripe olives and use them as a garnish.

Note: Tamale Pie may be made ahead and refrigerated before baking. In this case allow to stand at room temperature for an hour before baking; increase baking time by 15 to 30 minutes. To make sure Tamale Pie is hot through, test center by using a fork to dip out a small portion.

Sunday Dinner

Peking Lamb Chops
Fried Rice
Buttered Zucchini
Salad Bowl
Ice Cream with Fruit Sauce
PEKING LAMB CHOPS
8 medium-thick lamb chops (short-cut rib or loin)
2 tablespoons each soy sauce and sweet sherry
1 clove garlic, crushed
4 dime-size slices fresh ginger root, finely chopped
Cut all but a thin layer of fat away from around chops. In a shallow container large enough to hold chops in a single layer, stir together the remaining ingredients. Marinate chops in mixture, turning several times, for at least 1 hour. Broil to desired doneness. Makes 4 servings.

If dry beans have to be cooked in hard water, it's a good idea to add baking soda after the beans have been soaked and are ready to be cooked. Use 1/2 teaspoon of soda to 2 quarts water.

Heat Welsh rarebit sauce and serve with omelet—plain or puffy.

There's charm in novelty—something every cook should note. The homemaker especially should mark this well as her job of pleasing the family palate is an everyday one.

If wintertime is your biggest challenge to serving a variety of more sturdy salads, remember this "Winter Bean Salad." Kidney beans, canned tomato sauce with mushrooms, celery and mayonnaise, along with some piquant seasonings, are enfolded in a gelatin mixture. Result is a smooth and rich salad that's also crunchy and very satisfying.

(Canned tomato sauce with mushrooms is a concentrated blend of sun-ripened tomato solids, diced mushrooms, salt, onions, peppers and spices which enhance a recipe with just-right consistency, color and balanced seasoning. It lends all of these qualities to this excellent, hearty salad.)

For a party buffet, use a large gelatin mold for the mixture. Guests will relish this beauty so make plenty.

A pork roast, hot buttered rolls, relishes and cherry pie or tarts complete the menu.

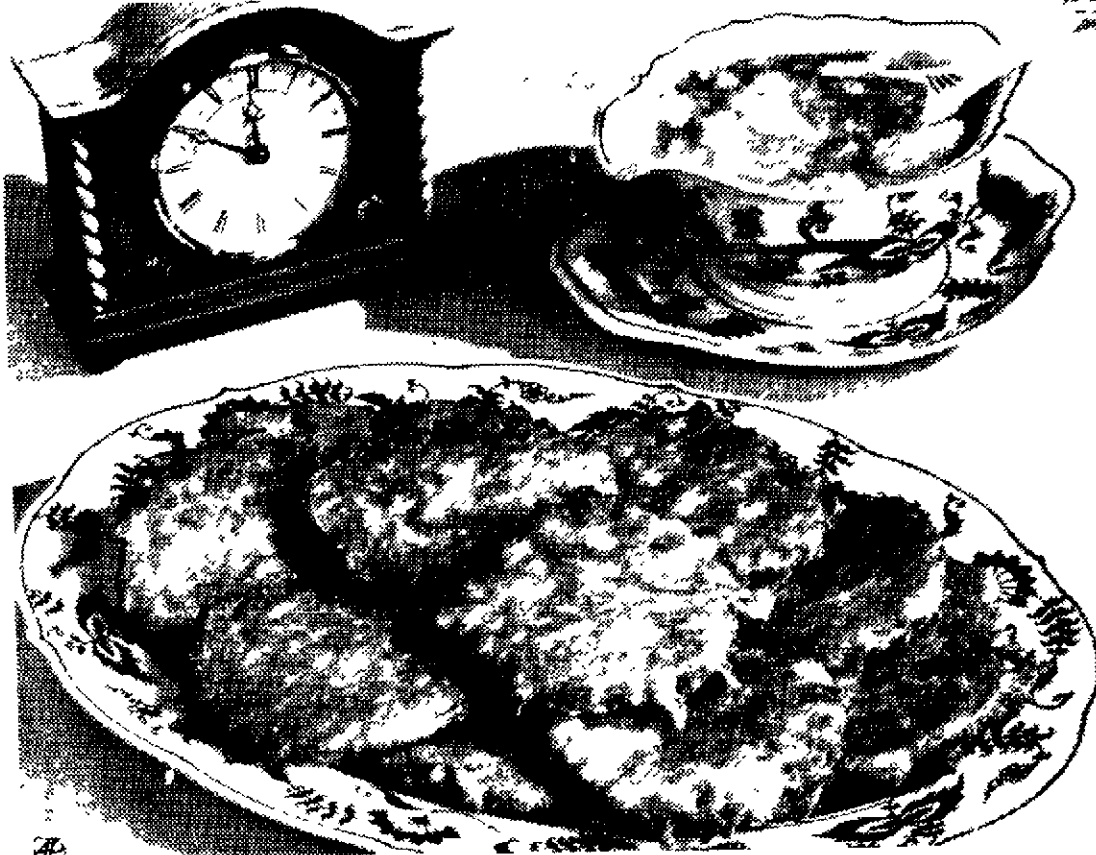

WINTER BEAN SALAD
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
1 cup hot water
1 (8-oz.) can tomato sauce with mushrooms
1 Tablesp. vinegar
2 tablesp. horseradish
1/2 tablesp. salt
1/2 tablesp. sugar
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 (15 1/2-oz.) can kidney beans or small red beans, drained
1/2 cup chopped celery
1 Tablesp. chopped green onions

Soften gelatin in cold water, dissolve in hot water. Stir in tomato sauce with mushrooms, vinegar, horseradish, salt and sugar. Chill until thickened but not set. Beat with rotary beater; add mayonnaise and beat until combined. Fold in beans, celery and onions. Pour into mold; chill until firm. Unmold onto serving platter. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

TAMALE PIE

An interesting combination of cornmeal, stewed tomatoes, whole-kernel corn, ground beef and ripe olives. Chili powder helps to give the casserole spicy seasoning.

POTATO PANCAKES

Pancakes With Applesauce

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
IF YOU aren't yet acquainted with the delight of eating potato pancakes, we urge you to try this recipe and have a wonderful time.

These pancakes come out of the skillet golden-brown and crisp on the outside, soft and flavorful within. Served with a bowl of freshly made applesauce, still warm from the kettle, the pancakes should satisfy any advocate of good cooking.

One of the best of the modern "convenience" products—batter-milk pancake mix—is called for in this recipe. Nothing else is needed besides the potatoes, several eggs and seasonings. Serve the pancakes for lunch, prefaced with vegetable soup or an appetizer salad. Or let the pancakes accompany sauerbraten and sweet-and-sour red cabbage; for this menu, you might like to top the pancakes with sour cream.

POTATO PANCAKES
6 medium (2 1/4-pound) potatoes
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
3 large eggs
1 medium onion
3/4 cup buttermilk pancake mix
Vegetable shortening (for frying)

Peel potatoes and drop into a large pan of ice-cold water to soak for several hours or even overnight.

When ready to make pancakes, place several thicknesses of paper toweling over a large sheet of heavy foil and place in warm oven to hold pancakes in a single layer as they are fried.

In a large mixing bowl, beat the salt, pepper and eggs just enough to combine yolks and whites. Finely grate in the onion so pulp and juice are used.

Into a medium bowl, coarsely grate the potatoes; use a grater whose slots measure 1/4-inch wide and remove each potato from the cold water only as you are ready to grate it. Drain the grated potatoes in a large colander; add them to the egg mixture along with the pancake mix; mix well. Do all this fast so potatoes won't discolor.

Meanwhile in a 10-inch skillet, heat vegetable shortening enough to come up 1/4 to 1/2 inch in the pan—to 350 degrees.

Into the hot fat drop a scant 1/4 cup of the potato mixture for each pancake and, with a wide spatula or pancake turner, slightly flatten each; 4 pancakes may be fried at one time. Fry until potatoes are cooked and pancakes are golden brown on both sides, turning once and adjusting heat as necessary. Keep pancakes warm on the paper-topped foil in the oven, but serve as soon as all are fried; this way tasters will find them deliciously crisp on the outside. Accompany pancakes with applesauce. Makes about 18-6 servings.

Weekday Lunch

A fine menu for a few members of the family or guests.

New Onion Mushroom Soup
Chicken Sandwiches with Celery Sticks and Gherkins
Fruit Beverage

NEW ONION MUSHROOM SOUP
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 cup thin strips onion (1 medium)
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed golden mushroom soup
1 soup can water
3 slices French bread, toasted Medium-grated Swiss cheese

In a medium saucepan over low heat, melt the butter; add onions; cook, stirring occasionally, until golden (not brown) and very soft—10 to 15 minutes or longer. Stir in soup and water. Heat, stirring several times. Sprinkle toast with cheese; place in soup bowls. Pour soup over toast. Serve at once. Makes 3 servings.

Want to Make the Best Indian Pudding?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associate Press Food Editor
DEAR CECILY: Do you have a really good recipe for Indian Pudding — the kind that doesn't curdle? I've tried half a dozen recipes for this New England dessert, but I've always been disappointed. I grew up in Ohio and didn't eat Indian Pudding until I met up with it at Durgin Park restaurant in Boston, where it definitely wasn't curdly. I fell for the pudding with a bang and started trying recipes for it; some of these produced a pudding that was too thin and curdled, some a pudding that was too spicy-strong. I'd appreciate your recommendation.

— M.M.
DEAR MESS M: You got the wrong word, baby. Indian Pudding doesn't curdle, it wheys.

And the wheying is okay. Fannie Farmer herself, in the first edition of her famous cookbook, warned cooks that this pudding "if baked too rapidly will not whey," implying of course that the wheying was desirable. However, we get the message. Apparently New England custom differs, because as you say, Durgin Park's pudding isn't wheyed. We happen to have the Indian Pudding recipe that the Durgin Park people distribute — supposedly the recipe they use — but we're sorry to say that in our experience their home rule doesn't turn out a pudding similar to the restaurant version. This may be due to the fact that in cutting the restaurant-size recipe to home-size proportions, necessary adjustments weren't worked out.

Be that as it may, we do have something to recommend. The best non-wheying Indian Pudding recipe we have tried to date comes from "What To Cook For Company" by Lenore Sullivan (Iowa State University Press). We're happy that the publisher of the book has given us permission to pass along Lenore Sullivan's directions. "What To Cook For Company" is one of the finest cookbooks we have ever come upon, and in it there are many well worked out and delicious American favorites, as well as many from other countries. We've known a number of home economists who were in Miss Sullivan's classes at Iowa State University and all have sung her praises.

When we tried her Indian Pudding recipe we used regular packaged enriched yellow cornmeal. We served the pudding shortly after baking, while it was still warm and of soft texture. If you top it with vanilla ice cream, you'll have an American combination that can't be beat. — C. B.

LENORE SULLIVAN'S
BAKED INDIAN PUDDING
1 quart milk
1/2 cup yellow corn meal
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup molasses
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter

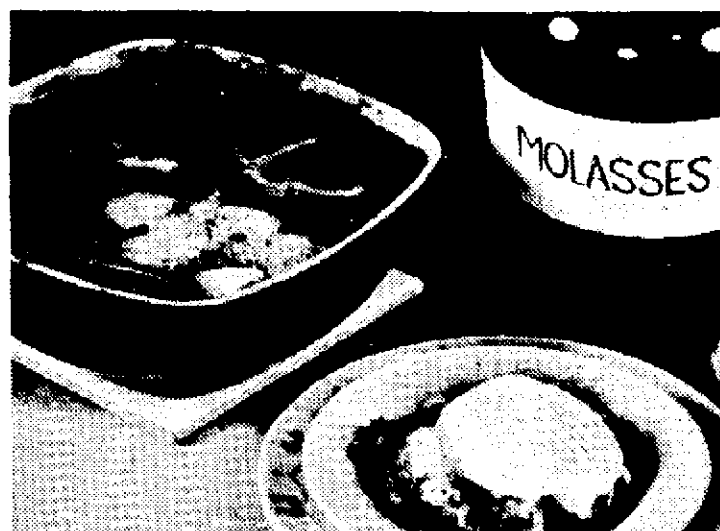

Scald 3 cups of the milk; pour over corn meal to which salt has been added. Add molasses, sugar, cinnamon and butter. Mix thoroughly. Turn into buttered 1 1/2-quart casserole. After pudding has been in oven 20 minutes, pour in the remaining cup of cold milk and stir carefully. Bake in very slow oven (250 degrees) 5 to 6 hours. Serve warm with whipped cream or ice cream. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

NOTE: To insure proper consistency, stir carefully four or five times during first 1 1/2 hours of baking. The pudding is very thin when put in the oven, but don't be alarmed — it will thicken and caramelize as it bakes.

The long slow baking is the secret of success with this old-fashioned New England pudding. It brings out the smooth caramel flavor and a texture like velvet. Hurried cooking at high temperature fails to develop the delicate flavor and the product will be syrupy and tasteless.

If you want that chocolate confectioners' sugar frosting extra rich, beat in an egg yolk or two. Be sure to refrigerate the cake on which this frosting is used.

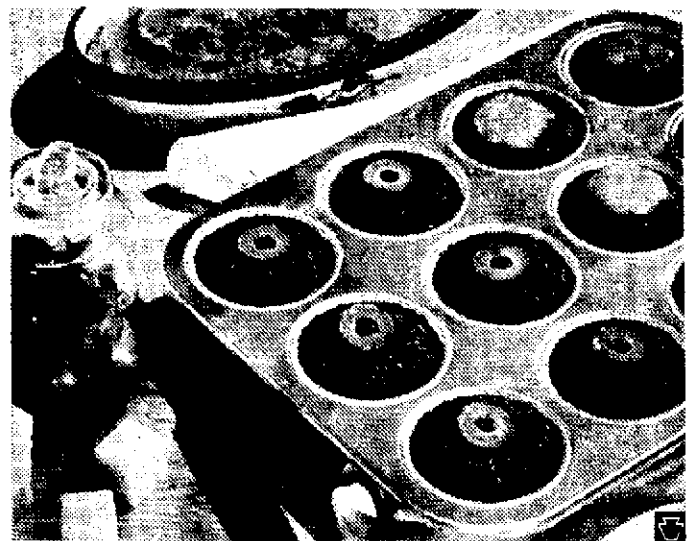

Chocolate souffle benefits when it is served with both chocolate sauce and whipped cream.

CONTROVERSIAL DESSERT

Should Indian Pudding have a smooth texture that doesn't separate or should it whey?

Mighty Good Miniatures

Miniature meat loaves, with a surprise garnish baked into each one. Unbelievably simple to make. Midget Meat Loaves use onion soup for flavor and Kellogg's Corn Flake Crumbs for tenderness and bonus nutrition. Bake 'em in muffin cups and serve two per person, one of each "flavor." We like to serve Midget Meat Loaves with baked squash, a green vegetable, bread sticks and a red cabbage salad.

MIDGET MEAT LOAVES

3 cups Kellogg's Corn Flakes
OR
3/4 cup Kellogg's Corn Flake Crumbs
1 1/2 pounds ground beef
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 cups (10 1/2-oz. can) condensed onion soup
3 stuffed olives, halved
6 3/4-inch cubes Cheddar cheese

If using Corn Flakes, crush into fine crumbs. Mix together Corn Flake Crumbs, ground beef, seasonings and soup. Spoon mixture into 12 ungreased 3-inch muffin cups; press lightly to shape. Press olive halves into half the meat loaves, cheese cubes into remainder. Bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) about 20 minutes.
Yield: 6 servings, 2 midget loaves each.

CINNAMON LOAF FRANCES

1/2 cup milk, scalded
1/4 cup each butter (soft) and sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 package active dry yeast
1/4 cup warm water
1 large egg, beaten until thick and lemon color
2 3/4 cups unsifted regular flour
2 teaspoons cinnamon mixed with 1/4 cup sugar

Into the scalded milk stir the butter, sugar and salt; cool to lukewarm. In a medium mixing bowl dissolve yeast in the warm water; stir in lukewarm milk mixture and egg. Add 1 1/4 cups of the flour and thoroughly beat until smooth; stir in another 1 1/4 cups flour. Turn out on lightly floured surface and working in the remaining 1/4 cup flour (or more if necessary); lightly knead for about 5 minutes. Place in greased bowl; turn to grease top; cover and let rise in a warm draft-free place until doubled—about 1 1/2 hours. Punch down; roll out into a 12 by 8 inch rectangle. Sprinkle with cinnamon sugar mixture. Tightly roll up from short end and seal ends. Place seam side down in a greased loaf pan (about 8 by 4 by 3 inches); cover; let rise as previously until doubled—about 1 1/4 hours. Bake in a 375-degree oven about 40 minutes. Turn out on wire rack; turn right side up; cool.

Leftover chocolate sauce may be stored in a tightly covered jar in the refrigerator. Before using, allow the sauce (in the jar) to stand at room temperature until it loses its chill, then reheat the sauce (in the jar) in hot water.

1/2 pint container heavy cream
In a round-bottom metal mixing bowl or similar double-boiler top sprinkle the gelatin over the cold water and allow to soften for about 5 minutes. Over very low heat, with a rubber or wooden spatula, stir constantly until gelatin dissolves—about 3 minutes. Remove from heat; add sugar and stir until dissolved. Stir in molasses and rum, then milk. Chill, stirring several times, until slightly thickened. Whip cream until it holds soft peaks and fold into gelatin mixture, heating gently if necessary to combine. Turn into a 1-quart mold; chill until firm; unmold. Makes 6 servings. (If you want the molasses and rum flavors to blend so the former is hardly distinguishable, chill dessert overnight before unmolding and serving.)

Common Nutmeg Narcotic

By CHARLES STORER
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Common nutmeg, the aromatic spice found atop an eggnog, is a narcotic that "many persons now consume deliberately to escape reality," a U.N. report says.
Andrew T. Weil of the Harvard Medical School, writing in the U.N. bulletin on narcotics, says nutmeg taken in large quantities causes many alarming symptoms.
Weil reported instances of nutmeg poisoning and said that when children accidentally eat large amounts of the spice, "serious intoxication occurs."
He found one recorded fatality — an 8-year-old boy who ate two whole nutmegs and died within 4 hours.
The most prevalent use of nutmeg as an hallucinogenic drug, Weil said, reportedly occurs among prison inmates cut off from marijuana. But he cited evidence of some use of nutmeg by students and others when they lack marijuana.

He said one undergraduate told him a beatnik acquaintance had boasted that he had known of the effects of nutmeg for years and that he and his friends had tried it several times.
Weil said there was ample evidence of the toxic effects of nutmeg but no agreement on what symptoms result from intoxication or what doses produce the symptoms.
But he said experts agree that "psychological expectations" largely determine the form of intoxication.
"Consequently, a person expecting horrible effects from nutmeg may well experience them," he said, "This may explain why women poisoned accidentally by nutmeg merely become stuporous, while prisoners have predominantly pleasant times."

CAN YOU BAKE A CHERRY PIE?

Yes you can — and easily, too, if you use quick-cooking tapioca to thicken the cherries. Unlike many other thickeners, Minute Tapioca makes a filling that is crystal clear with a perfect consistency every time. No special handling necessary either — just mix with your filling ingredients and bake.

CHERRY CRISPCROSS PIE

4 teaspoons quick-cooking tapioca	1/2 cup drained cherry liquid
1 cup sugar	6 drops red food coloring
1/2 teaspoon salt	1/4 teaspoon almond extract (optional)
2 cans (1 lb. each) drained water packed pitted red sour cherries	Pasty for two-crust 9-inch pie
	1 tablespoon butter

Combine tapioca, sugar, salt, cherries, cherry liquid, food coloring and almond extract. Mix thoroughly and let stand about 15 minutes. Roll half of the pastry 1/8 inch thick. Line a 9 inch pie pan and trim pastry at edge of rim. Roll remaining pastry 1/8 inch thick. Cut into 1/2 inch strips. Fill pie shell with cherry mixture. Dot with butter.

Moisten edge of bottom crust. Adjust pastry strips in lattice across top of pie. Trim and press ends to edge of bottom crust. Flute edge. Bake at 425° for 50 minutes or until crust is golden brown and pie filling bubbles near center.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

FOOD SPECIALS

Lewis' — The house Quality and Service built. There is no substitute and the price is right. This is the policy R. L. Lewis started back in 1865. There have been many improvements, but we still have the butcher behind the meat counter to cut and wrap all your meat — the way you want it done. All our cold meat is sliced fresh, not pre-packaged. You can get just the amount you want sliced any thickness.

Spelling Contestants

COMPETITION AT JEFFERSON SCHOOL

Jefferson Elementary School was host to Home St. School in yesterday's contest in the Times-Mirror and Observer Spelling Bee. The adults pictured on the left side were Miss Dorothy Lincoln, principal Home St. School, and Dale Brown, 6th grade teacher at Jefferson School; and on the right side, Mrs. Ruth Bannon, 6th Grade, Home St., and Angelo DiMino, principal of Jefferson. Theodore Ochs, 6th grade, Jefferson, was not present. Front row, left to right, Home St. team, Kris Robertson, Betsy Powell, Kim Grady, Angelo Maggio, Susan Phillips, Sonya Thelin, James Donaldson, Mark Holtz. Back row, Jefferson School, Sally Hedman, Rose DeFablo, Laurie Christie, John Kersey, Jim Cunningham, John Benson, Tony Pellegrino, Mark Pascuzzi. (Photo by Mansfield)

SOUTH SPELLERS AT LACY

PLAN FOR GIRL SCOUT ART SHOW

Brownie Troop 540 met at Irvindale School yesterday afternoon to advance plans for the Girl Scout Art Show which will be held on April 29th and 30th, with a special showing on May 1st for various Scout groups. Fourteen of the members were present at yesterday's workshop. The leaders are Mrs. Nancy Davies and Mrs. Dorothy Wingert. (Photo by Mansfield)

DUNGAREE BAND IN CONCERT

The Dungaree Band will join in an Evening of Music at Beatty Junior High School Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Richard West is director of the band. The public is invited to attend the program which will be offered in the auditorium of the school. (Photo by Mansfield)

we care

who shops at A&P?

People who have discovered there is more to a Super Market than meets the eye.

People who have discovered the advantage of shopping at a store that is fair, honest, and dependable.

People who have learned how nice it is to be cared about.

People who want a store that stands behind everything they sell, no matter who makes it.

People who want to be sure they'll never miss out on an advertised special.

People who are concerned about their total food bill.

Shouldn't A&P be your store?

ABOARD THE U.S.S. ENTER-PRISE OFF NORTH VIETNAM
— When targets are assigned to the pilots of Attack Squadron 35 aboard this carrier, it is usually done on a random basis
— but not when the target is Nam Dinh.

No pilot returns to that city until every other pilot has flown a mission over it because everyone knows that it is the toughest target in the North.

One of the squadron's top pilots, Lt. Cmdr. Eugene McDaniel of Virginia Beach, Va.,

made the 75-mile run to Nam-dinh recently. When he returned, just before midnight, he asked a friend for a cigarette, the first he had smoked in almost two years.

"Tough hop," said McDaniel, a big man with a nonsubjective view of his job. "It was a hard night for the people on the ground, too. Tough for everyone."

The brunt of the air war against the North has been borne for many weeks by these pilots and others who fly the A-6 Intruder.

McDaniel and his bombardier navigator, Lt. Kelly Patterson of Long Beach, Calif., had been over their target — a small petroleum storage area — for no more than four minutes. But during that time, the pilots said, they had been exposed to the fire of more than 500 antiaircraft guns, and about a half dozen Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles had been fired at their plane.

Neither of the aviators saw the missiles. They knew they were there because of the wildly flashing lights on their electronic detection equipment.

McDaniel said that he had avoided the missiles by "extreme jinking" — throwing the plane through a series of violent maneuvers too sudden for the missiles to follow. At some points, his plane was only a few hundred feet off the ground. "They threw up more steel tonight than we dropped on them," said Paterson. "All those textile workers are pretty good antiaircraft gunners."

He referred to a series of dispatches from North Vietnam by Harrison E. Salisbury, an assistant managing editor of the New York Times, who reported, late last year, that ported late last year that

Namdinh's mayor, Tran Thi Doan, had described the city as a peaceful textile center.

Salisbury also said that in Namsinh, the third largest city in North Vietnam until its population of 90,000 was reduced to 20,000 by evacuation, he had seen block after block of utter devastation."

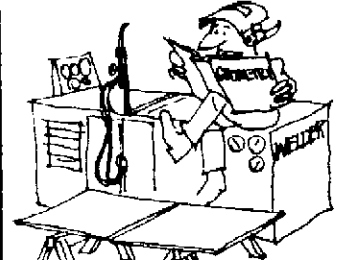

The pilots, even when talking in the most informal atmosphere, stoutly maintain that they have bombed no residential areas, although they readily concede that their aim is not always perfect. Some of them speculated that much of the damage to civilian homes may have been caused by fighter-bombers zooming in to hit flak sites when they open up on the intruders.

According to the North Vietnamese, Salisbury reported on Dec. 25, 89 persons had been killed and 405 wounded in attacks on Namdinh.

The pilots did not challenge these figures. They asserted, however, that 89 deaths in a city that has been hit at least 400 times by raids often including five or more planes was not an extraordinarily large figure. And they emphasized, again and again, that every civilian casualty had been "completely inadvertent."

DARK circles under a child's eyes are frequently a clue to a respiratory allergy, says Dr. Meyer B. Marks, University of Miami School of Medicine. The "shiners" are a prominent sign of chronic nasal allergy caused by allergic swelling of the mucous membrane which dams the flow of blood in the areas below the eyelids.

DRAWING an arc is a term applied to the first step in making a weld by the electric arc process, says Alloy Rods Company, York, Pa. An electrode is brought in contact with a work surface and then quickly withdrawn. The current jumps the gap, forming an arc.
